Under the Alps, Then Italy
Mussolini's Rebuilding
Old, Forgotten Castle Walls
Ships That Come No More

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

(Copyright, 1936, by King Features Syndicate, Inc. International copyright and all other rights reserved.)

This column is written in Italy; others written here will follow. An American who has traveled across his own country, many times, remembering the distance across New Mexico, Arizona, big Texas, states between the oceans, is amazed at the speed with which he travels here from one nation and one language, to another nation of different language, the two as far apart in everything as the poles.

You settle down in your first, second or third class seat, thank the Frenchman who puts your luggage in a rack above your head, meditate for a few minutes on the ruins of empires, the difference between American and European cooking, or the election campaign proceeding in the U. S. A.

The train glides out of the southern end of a tunnel under the Alps, and a polite young customs representative of the Mussolini government calls you signor, instead of monsieur, everybody talks and thinks Italian; landscape, houses, uniforms, farms, human faces, language are all different, as though you had been transplanted on another planet. The young Mussolini customs official asks how much Italian, French, American money you have. Takes your word, examines nothing, seems glad to see you instead of scowling.

Things change on this little earth ball. Our early European ancestors, with flint-tipped clubs, walked over those mountains, always watching for a weaker man to eat.

Hannibal, with his war elephants, crossing to Spain from Carthage, then over the Pyrenees, marched through the Alpine passes, into Italy, recruiting soldiers by force, or guile as he went.

Later Caesar, going the other way to add Gaul to Roman territory, wrote his name in history books. Then Napoleon, a man of Caesar's Italian blood, came from north to south to conquer Italy and Austria. He crossed the Alps in the deep snow of winter, saying:

"I deserve credit only for not believing fools who said it could not be done."

Next locomotives, with steam power came through the tunnel that man had dug under the Alps. That seemed the final possibility, but two American mechanics worked at a "contraption" that flew. Now, those in a hurry fly over the Alps as a matter of course, and as this is written, Mussolini, Italian ruler, authorizes an increase in Italy's regular fighting air force to thirty seven thousand two hundred men.

Those 37,200, with the right flying, bombing and gassing equipment, might conquer all the nations of the earth, if the other nations were all quietly sleeping in golden security, as the United States is sleeping.

Soon our oceans will mean, for protection, as little as the Alps now mean to Italy, or the channel to England. Somebody, eventually, will make that discovery, perhaps unpleasantly.

Coming underneath the mountains into Italy your train enters a new world, created by the Roman-Italian race two thousand years ago, re-created, with new and boundless energy, by Mussolini. Seeing what he has done and what Italians are doing, you wonder whether nations like men must die in old age or whether they wait only for the man of power to restore lost youth. Time and history will answer your question.

The valleys beyond the tunnel are narrow with steep green or rocky walls rising on either side. Where there is soil on the rocks, and the hill is not too steep for a man to walk and work, every inch is cultivated. Where it is too steep, the hills have been terraced, the terraces held up by rock walls many more than twenty feet high that were built long ago to gain a few square feet of level ground.

Everywhere vineyards climb along the steeper hills for, to every Italian, a vineyard is as important as cows and hens. The iron of the grape taken with the red wine, shows in the ruddy complexions and powerful bodies of [illegible], the old included.

With less than half the fertile area of California, Italy must feed more than ten times California's population. They must work, hard, every day, in every generation.

Everywhere on hill tops and mountain sides are ruins of castles and tall towers, built by proud nobles for their own grandeur and to give a refuge and protection to their workers in the valleys outside the castle walls.

A high wall surrounds a great square, before a ruined castle. There the country side took refuge: children, women and

NEWYORK FIRM OFFERS CASH FOR AMOSKEAG

ENGLISH BID HALTS QUIZ OF MILLS

A New York banking firm, reported to represent English interests, today made a cash bid for the purchase of the vast properties of the Amoskeag Mills in Manchester, N. H.

The announcement halted the first of a series of hearings by the Sabath Congressional Investigating Committee, scheduled for today, during which federal government seeks to inquire into the financial structure of the mills during the past ten years.

Members of the Sabath committee, Peter C. Borre, chief counsel; Leo W. Hopkins, William J. Kenney and Lawrence Mason, investigator, were closeted in a private hearing in the federal building when the announcement was made.

On request of counsel for Frederic C. Dumaine, treasurer of the now defunct mills; his son, Frederic C. Dumaine, Jr., and H. E.

D. J. Dooley Named for Librarian

Abandoning his attempts to place Mrs Margaret O'Riordan in the job, Governor Curley today nominated Dennis J. Dooley, recently dean of Boston College Law School, as state librarian at $5700 a year.

In submitting Dooley's name to the council, the governor surrendered in a fight he had waged for several months to get approval of Mrs. O'Riordan, prominent Democratic worker, through the council.

On each of several times Curley submitted the name of Mrs. O'Riordan, the executive council rejected her.

Naming of Dooley, who resigned only a few days ago as the law school dean, came as a surprise on Beacon Hill. The Council will act on confirmation or rejection next week.

Dooley, first dean at the school, was graduated from Boston College several years ago.

Attorney Michael J. Sullivan of Lawrence was named for presiding judge of the Massachusetts land court, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Judge Charles T. Davis.

In naming Sullivan the governor revealed that he had first offered the position to Judge Joseph J. Corbett, an associate justice of the municipal court.

The Governor said that Judge Corbett had refused the offer of promotion.

Attorney Sullivan is one of the best known and most active Democrats in Essex County, being active in the courts in both Lawrence and Salem.

REDS MURDER 114 MONKS

BULLETIN

Paris, Sept. 9 (INS)—The newspaper L'Intransigeant in a dispatch from St. Jean de Luz today said the historic Alcazar fortress at Toledo, Spain, had been reported captured by loyalists this morning.

Northern Spanish White Army Headquarters, Burgos, Sept. 9—One hundred fourteen monks of Augustine religious order were shot down at El Escorial without court-martial by the Reds, according to "Diario De Burgos," which declares today that President Manuel Azana made an effort to save them but lacked the power to do so.

This latest atrocity report is taken here to mean that the Reds, who are fortified in El Escorial, feel the imminent danger of an attack by the Whites, who have pushed so far forward on both sides of El Escorial that it may soon be surrounded.

El Escorial, an immense building built by Philip II in 1584 at a cost of $4,000,000, has little military significance, and lies only one hour's drive from Madrid.

AZANA'S VAIN PLEDGE

Augustine College, to which the monks belonged, is a well-known educational institution and, according to the whites' principal newspaper, President Azana attended it. Because of his associations with the college he had declared that so long as he was president nothing would happen to the monks.

"It was a vain promise," said "Diaria De Burgos." "This is

4 N. E. STATES WILL HEAR LANDON

Ten cities in four New England states will hail and hear Governor Alfred M. Landon on Saturday.

Bearing him to Portland, Me., for his speech to be broadcast over a nationwide hookup Saturday night, the Republican presidential candidate's special train will make nine stops for rear-platform addresses as follows:

CONNECTICUT—Stamford, Bridgeport, New Haven and New London.

MASSACHUSETTS—Worcester, Lowell and Lawrence.

NEW HAMPSHIRE—Dover.

MAINE—Kennebunk.

Governor Landon's itinerary en route from New York city to Portland does not include Boston.

He will spend Saturday night and Sunday in Portland as the guest of Senator Frederick Hale and will start back to Topeka, Monday morning.

MAY HIT BOSTON

There is a chance his train will be routed through Boston on the return trip but this has not definitely been decided and the probability is that the nominee will swing across western Massachusetts to Albany—saving a Boston visit until later in the campaign.

The Landon plans call for his arrival at Portland at 6 p. m. (E. D. T.). He said he thought the speech time would be 10:30 p. m. (E. D. T.).

The length of stops in Chicago and New York City, the governor said, depended upon a final decision on the method of travel. Originally, it had been planned to travel on regular trains as far as New York.

An open clash between Mayor Mansfield and Attorney-General Paul A. Dever today enlivened the inquiry being conducted at the State House on the legality of contracts awarded two companies in construction of Quabbin reservoir.

The argument started over the procedure at which the inquiry was being conducted and grew so heated at one time that Mayor Mansfield shouted:

MAINE BAROMETER VOTE INDICATES G. O. P. SWEEP

RECORD POLL SEEN AT MONDAY ELECTION NEW DEAL ISSUE OF CAMPAIGN

By JOHN T. LAMBERT

Special to American Newspapers, Inc.

Augusta, Me., Sept. 9—Maine will go Republican. A sweep is on. The people here are "sick and tired" of the New Deal.

These are the opinions everywhere prevalent as the state's important barometer campaign swung today toward a whirlwind climax.

The election will be held next Monday.

Maine's people will elect a United States senator, governor, their three congressmen and state officers.

"As Maine goes, so goes the nation," has been an historic political slogan. In this campaign it seems to possess merit.

ISSUES NATIONAL

The campaign has been waged on national issues.

"Are you for the New Deal or against it?"

The Monday election will be the first definite answer to the basic question by the electorate of any state. Moreover, the state has been Democratic for four years. It elected a Democratic Governor four years ago and forecast to the nation the triumph of Mr. Roosevelt over Mr. Hoover which would follow in November.

FORECAST VICTORY

Two years later, the Democratic Governor was re-elected by an astonishing majority. The people chose two Democratic Congressmen out of three. Maine's Republican candidate for the Senate squeaked by with an insignificant majority of less than 1291.

Thus Maine forecast the nation-wide congressional elections which gave the New Deal an unprecedented off-year majority membership in both the Senate and House at Washington.

The important and intensely interesting barometer election on Monday will again forecast whether the people are with the New Deal or have definitely turned away from it. A Republican victory will enhearten the party in every state in the country and undoubtedly could cause an enormous bandwagon parade to the standards of Governor Landon.

SIGNS ALL REPUBLICAN

Certainly it will bring into the open many opponents of the New Deal who now hide their hostility in fear of the reprisals that would be undertaken against them by the New Deal propagandists at Washington.

The surface signs here are all Republican. Autos are everywhere decorated with Republican banners. Auto plates indicate Landon. Sunflower decorations are prevalent. Maine's plain, sturdy folk are unafraid to demonstrate their anti-New Deal antagonism.

If Landon were on the ballot versus Roosevelt next Monday, the Kansas governor would attain one of the greatest victories ever accorded a Republican nominee. Republicans, Democrats and New Dealers alike admit this outcome.

With Landon and Roosevelt off the ballot until November, the Monday test of the New Deal concentrates among the candidates for senator, governor and congressmen.

Maine's personally popular governor, Louis J. Brann, is now the New Deal candidate for the Senate, arrayed against United States Senator Wallace H. White, Jr. Their contest is possibly reasonably close, with the odds in favor of White. Brann, on his own, might win. He has accumulated for himself some of the New Deal opposition.

Knowing it, Brann carries water on both shoulders. In New Deal centers, he is one of them. In anti-New Deal quarters, he strives to give the appearance of arraying himself against some of the Roosevelt policies. He didn't want to run for office. He was put in by Roosevelt and Farley, as were Lehman in New York and Murphy in Michigan.

BARROWS TO WIN

The Republican candidate for Governor, Secretary of State Lewis O. Barrows, will be overwhelmingly elected, according to all the signposts. He is opposed by F. Harold Dubord, who came within an ace of defeating Senator Hale, Republican, two years ago.

The Republicans will elect two, if not all three, of the congressmen. Simon Hamlin, New Dealer, will go down to defeat in the First Congressional District, at the hands of James C. Oliver, Republican, who also has the old-age pensions backing. Representative Ralph O. Brewster, Maine's only Republican in the House, will be comfortably re-elected.

This excellent scene, taken in the governor's office at Topeka, Kansas, shows John Doctoroff, of Chicago, Illinois, noted portrait painter, putting the finishing touches on a portrait of Governor Alfred M. Landon, Republican candidate for the presidency. require use of a special train from the start.

The nominee declined to state the topic of his Maine speech. Among aides there was talk that he would discuss business and its relationship to government.

From Topeka, Governor Landon conferred immediately by long-distance telephone with Republican national committee officials in Chicago. Next he held his press conference and said he had no special birthday plans.

Jesse Owens, negro athlete and Olympic star, was an early caller in Topeka today. Accompanied from his train by a large group of local negro Republicans, he met the Governor and in a statement said:

"I feel as I never felt before the vital issues and the necessity of safe-guarding our form of government."

Quietly celebrating his 49th birthday at Topeka, Governor Landon conferred with New England advisors as he prepared for his surprise dash to Portland where he will personally close the campaign in the state commonly reputed to bell-wether the nation in a presidential year.

His decision to make the 2000-mile trip was viewed as a turning point in his campaign for the White House, as it embarked him on a vigorous, active drive for the presidency.

His planned Maine appearance was also interpreted as reflecting the confidence of Maine Republican leaders that a Republican victory all down the ticket is assured.

Governor Landon said:

"I am going to Maine to help re-dedicate the state to the good government for which it has always stood and to participate in the first fighting repudiation at the polls of the kind of government this country has had for the last three years."

The G. O. P. standard-bearer will leave Topeka tomorrow at 8:25 p. m. (C. S. T.).

Maine on Monday will elect one United States senator, a governor, and three members of the National House of Representatives as well as other state and local officials.

The state does not cast its presidential vote until November 3 along with the rest of the country, but both Republican and Democratic camps have waged a terrific struggle to win in Monday's election.

While the old saying, "As Maine Goes So Goes the Nation" has not always proved true, a smashing victory for either side generally has a psychological effect throughout the country.

However, the state went Democratic in the 1932 state and congressional elections, but Hoover carried it in November.

Governor Louis Brann, Democrat, is seeking the Senate seat now held by Senator Wallace H. White, Republican, who is up for re-election. Two of the state's three representatives in the National House of Representatives, are Democrats.

FEW OUTSIDERS

While the Republicans have sent into the state several nationally-known speakers, aside from President Roosevelt's personal visit to the state recently the Democrats have not drawn heavily upon outside speakers.

Former Senator James A. Reed, Democrat, of Missouri, delivered an attack on the Roosevelt "New Deal" in Maine, calling upon Jeffersonian Democrats to repudiate it. Joseph B. Ely, former Democratic governor of Massachusetts also appealed to Maine to help put the "New Dealers" out of Washington.

In announcinig his plan to strike now in the northeastern sector, Governor Landon crossed up the political forecasters. For weeks it has been known that the Republican nominee had been working on an itinerary to carry him into Iowa, Illinois, Minnesota and Wisconsin, with expectations he would deliver a major address on the farm problem at Des Moines, Iowa.

But the details of that campaign tour were held in abeyance, pending his decision on battle tactics. Closely the G. O. P. standard-bearer guarded his plan to strike at this time in the East.

In his address at Portland Saturday night, he will deliver a ringing appeal to the people to support Republican candidates, for a Republican Congress "to restore the American way of doing things."

During his first invasion of the east, which carried him to West Middlesex, Pa., and Chautauqua and Buffalo in New York, he repeatedly contended that the Democratic Congress has abandoned its constitutional duties, passing more "ill-advised and haphazardly-prepared legislation in three years than in any similar period in our history."

And he has said repeatedly:

"The way to put a stop to that is to elect a Republican Congress in November."

His address at Portland will be broadcast nationally over the National Broadcasting company's network.

In it he is expected to hammer on Roosevelt "New Deal" policies, tariff and taxation, which he contends have robbed American workmen of jobs.

Whether he will discuss the NRA, AAA and other Roosevelt measures held unconstitutional by the Supreme Court in his Portland address was not revealed, though his aides assured it would be a "fighting speech."

Arrangements for several hundred leaders of the young Republican clubs throughout the country to confer with the governor in Topeka Friday were dropped with the announcement of the nominee's program to strike in the northeast.

The "front porch" reception for the visiting young Republicans with an address to be broadcast nationally, will be held when he returns to the West next week.

Landon Leads Roosevelt 2 to 1 in Grass Roots Poll

New York, Sept. 9 (INS)—Governor Alfred M. Landon, Republican presidential nominee, is running almost two to one ahead of President Roosevelt in the "grass roots" poll being conducted by more than 3000 weekly papers in co-operation with the Publishers' Autocaster Service and the American Press, it was announced today after the third week's returns were tabulated.

To date 359,280 votes from 35 states have been cast in the poll, which reaches only the small towns and farming areas, with these totals:

Landon	219,159	60.99 per cent
Roosevelt	116,972	32.55 per cent
Lemke	16,842	4.69 per cent
Thomas	3,040	.85 per cent
Colvin	1,126	.32 per cent
Browder	2,141	.60 per cent

The poll gives Mr. Roosevelt only seven states: Alabama, California, Florida, Idaho, North Carolina, Texas and Utah. The President picked up California by a narrow margin, but lost Michigan and Montana.

Landon's Tolerance

GOVERNOR ALFRED M. LANDON, addressing the Kansas State Convention of the American Legion, called tolerance a duty of citizenship, denounced class and racial hatreds, condemned those who seek to benefit by hatreds and antagonisms.

Said Governor Landon:

"It ought not to be necessary to stress tolerance in America. We have a great tradition of tolerance growing out of the fundamentals of our past.

"Our forbears came of different stocks, different religions. Men of every nation, every clime united in building this country.

"Protestants, Catholics, Jews worked here side by side, good neighbors, good citizens.

"No other nation has such a background."

GOVERNOR LANDON'S address is heartening, for, in recent years, the United States has seen disquieting evidence of attempts to stir up racial antagonism, to arouse religious bigotry, to set class against class.

Strikes fomented by Communist influences outraged thoughtful people with riots, destruction of property and wanton disregard of human rights.

Dissension arising in the ranks of organized labor caused a split that even now menaces the progress and achievements of generations of honest endeavor.

No less disturbing were the appeals that came from the very heart of the Roosevelt Administration, the condemnation of groups of citizens and the false promises held out to other groups.

FROM an Administration so employed in turning class against class, tolerant citizens throughout the country could not expect much support for their protests against intolerance outside the country. It was not surprising they received little.

Despite the opposition of all religious citizens of America who knew the facts, Russia, reeking with the blood of class warfare, was promptly recognized AS A LAWFUL GOVERNMENT.

Germany, whose persecutions and "purges" recalled the Dark Ages, was FAVORED to such an extent that thousands of tons of its steel were bought for a government project in preference to steel made in America.

Without a word of protest from "Good Neighbor" Roosevelt, Mexico continued her war on religion, Catholic and Protestant, with arms shipped from America.

And Italy, fighting the Ethiopian slave-holders, escaped the penalties considered at one time in Washington only by the strong pro-Italian sentiment throughout the nation.

IN the light of these events, Governor Landon's plea for tolerance in America comes like a ray of sunshine in a troubled sky. By it, the Republican presidential nominee reveals himself a worthy successor to Washington and Lincoln, who also opposed intolerance.

Class warfare has no place on this side of the Atlantic. Governor Landon, great American, realizes that, AND THE REALIZATION MAKES HIM AN EVEN GREATER AMERICAN.

Landon to Win Hoover Says

New York, Sept. 9—Former President Herbert Hoover arrived here today and declared that in his opinion the political situation is "very favorable to Governor Landon."

Hoover said he would make a speech on behalf of the Republican ticket "somewhere in the East" on October 9 or 10. The details have not yet been completed. He will also talk on September 23 at a forum conducted by a New York city newspaper.

Mrs. Beryl Markham, first woman to fly solo from England to America, looks over some of the thousands of cablegrams and letters that are pouring in to her in New York. Mrs. Markham hasn't even had time to shop for new clothing, but is still wearing her slacks-sports shirt costume.

New York, Sept. 9—At last I've had my hair washed.

The reek of the old petrol fumes is finally out of my curls, and I feel like another woman.

It's my third day in New York, and everybody continues to be considerate and kind and all too flattering.

The compliment I like most, I think, came from a public house proprietor on Third avenue. He said I was a "swell goil" and I "sure had guts." What a lovely word!

Well, what shall I tell you now? Perhaps you want to know how I ever took up this crazy business of flying.

It's all quite simple—flying is a necessity, and not a sport, in our Kenya colony which I really consider home.

You see, the roads are so bad and the distances so great, that you can't count on the motor car to pull you through.

I'd had only a few passenger flights before I began thinking to myself, "This looks fairly easy, why can't I do it too?"

By great good luck, Tommy Campbell Black, the winner of the London to Melbourne race, happened to be in Kenya, as chief pilot for the Wilson Airways, and he taught me.

"Taxi Flying"

I had eight hours of dual control flying with Tommy, and then I went up solo. You can learn fast in Kenya, where the climate is 99 per cent sunshine the year round.

I was particularly fortunate because Tommy took such infinite pains with me. After I had made my first solo flight, he went up alongside me for 40 or 50 hours after that, improving my technique and giving me a jolly good ragging every time I went wrong.

Early in 1931, I got my "ticket A" license. Then I got my own ship, and did "taxi flying" and what you call "barnstorming" all around Kenya.

My specialty was in visiting hunting people, taking supplies to them, stalking elephants, and so forth; or swinging down to the gold mine district with doctors and medicines for people who were ill there, or bringing them out to hospital.

Frightened at first? Of course. Naturally I found it a bit strange. But I don't think there's anybody flying who isn't a bit frightened of flying at the start.

But after I reasoned with myself a bit, I found it was nearer to horseback riding than anything else. And I rode my first hunter when I was barely 8 years old.

That confidence in the saddle helped me a lot in the cockpit. Besides, I've played quite a lot of polo—which teaches you to make quick decisions, keep your balance, an' be absolutely fearless.

6000 Miles

My navigation and the technical side of flying I learned from books by myself. There are no aviation schools in Kenya, or many others for that matter.

It took me a good six months of intensive study before I got my B license in 1933. And as for my blind flying course, I passed that in London only a few weeks ago.

My first long flight of any account was from Kenya to London in 1932, a matter of 6000 miles. I simply loafed through it, taking seven days.

The second time, I think it took about the same, and the third and last time I did it in six.

Your route is this: Take off at Nairobi in Kenya. Then Djuba in Italian colonial territory, then Khartoum, Cairo, Bengazi, Tripoli, Tunis, Cagliari in Sardinia, Cannes on the French Riviera, Paris and London.

But I've really seen little or nothing of all these interesting and sometimes charming places. When you're flying a load, you usually arrive in the evening and leave the next morning.

So apart from three or four days in Cairo this last winter, and three or four days in Cannes, I've never had a chance to do any sightseeing. London I hardly know at all.

You see, I went out to Kenya with my father when I was barely six. And I went to India about 1919, to Calcutta, just to visit some people.

I did once make a flight to Southern Rhodesia, but in all the time I've lived in Africa I've never had been to Cape Town.

In the past year, of course, I have been flying my employer from London to Paris to Cannes, Berlin, Vienna, Rome and so forth. But I can't seem to remember a single historic building—except as I saw it from the air—or to have visited a single museum. All I know is airports.

You can see that, though I have travelled a bit, I'm really not at all cultured.

I was educated almost entirely by governesses—Russian, French, and so on, because when father and I first were out in Kenya, the schools were either non-existent or impossible.

I believe I once did go two terms in school in Kenya—between governesses. I was out there 15 years before going home to England, and in those days it was a very peculiar life, quite wild.

Well, your early September heat has just about done me, and in spite of these lovely cool new clean clothes I feel a bit fagged. And I must rest up for your Lord Mayor's reception at City Hall.

My word. I have never felt so excited since I was presented at court in Buckingham palace by my mother-in-law, eight years ago.

(Another instalment of Mrs. Markham's own story will appear in the Boston Evening American tomorrow.)

Husband Gets Jail as Wife, 2 Sons Rouse Court's Ire

After his wife had refused to testify against him and his two young sons had incurred the displeasure of the court, James H. Porter, 40, of Green street, Cambridge, was found guilty in Newton court today of assault and battery on his wife, and sentenced to two years in the House of Correction.

Porter was charged with attacking his wife, May, at her home in Staniford street, Auburndale, on August 11, police testifying that when they were sent to the house they found her unconscious on the lawn, he jaw swollen. She was taken to a hospital and her name placed on the danger list for several days.

When Mrs. Porter was called to the stand she took refuge in the state law which decrees a wife is not required to testify against a husband.

BOY SAW BLOW

Joseph Hannigan, 8, told Judge W. Lloyd Allen that he saw Porter hit Mrs. Porter on the jaw.

Porter's sons, James, 9, and Richard, 8, then were called and each replied, in response to a series of questions, that he did not know what happened. They live with their mother.

Judge Allen ordered the boys given temporarily into the charge of a police matron and the wife taken from the courtroom. Mrs. Porter then attempted to be heard, but the court would not listen.

In his defense, Porter said he had driven over to visit his wife, from whom he is estranged, that after buying ice cream cones for the family she snatched the ignition key out of his car and ran.

APPEALS JAIL TERM

He said he chased her and took the key away but did not strike her. He said she stumbled in a gully but he did not see her fall and that when he was leaving she was walking towards the house.

Judge Allen said:

"I want everybody in this court to know that regardless of whether a person is three or 93, he can't come in here and perjure himself. These children didn't take an oath before their father but before God."

Porter appealed the sentence of two years and was held in $2000 bonds. His sons, after the judge had talked with them privately at the close of the case, went home with their mother.

DEFIANT, Starts Jail TOIL

MRS. HART PUT IN LAUNDRY

Apparently as determined as ever not to pay a $3 court fine for an alleged traffic violation, Mrs. Maybelle B. Hart, 48, of Newland street, Arlington, today began her second day in East Cambridge jail.

Protesting her innocence, she chose jail instead of paying the fine yesterday and unless she changes her mind she must serve six days behind bars to work out her fine.

She slept well last night, breakfasted on eggs, bread and coffee and returned to work, with other women prisoners, in the hot and steaming laundry.

Awaits Hubby

She was entitled to have visitors today and her husband, J. Fredson Hart, was expected at the jail.

He tried several times to dissuade her from her purpose of serving out the fine, but she was adamant and he said he would no longer try to change her mind.

Mrs. Hart is alleged to have driven through a pedestrian light in Arlington.

She maintains she was turning on a green arrow and is supported in this contention by her husband, but she was found guilty and fined in East Cambridge district court after she refused to pay $3 costs to have the case placed on file without a finding.

Sheriff Joseph M. MacElroy said she was being treated "just like any other prisoner."

$131,600 Prizes For N. Y.-Paris Hop

Paris, Sept. 9 (AP)—Air Minister Pierre Cot announced today the winner of a projected air race between New York and Paris next May—commemorating the tenth anniversary of Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh's famous flight—would get a million francs, currently $65,800.

The race will be open to any type of plane, after a single test over a New York airport.

The winner will be the plane making the fastest time between the two cities. Refuelling en route will be permitted.

There will be additional prizes of 500,000 francs ($32,900) for second place, 300,000 francs ($19,740) for third place and 200,000 francs ($13,160) for fourth place.

SWEEPS WINNER HAS ONE REGRET

SORRY MOTHER CAN'T SHARE

Conway, N. H., Sept. 9—Ernest Goodno, 15 years old—he will be 16 on September 20—had one regret today after his first few minutes of joy following the winning of $10,000.

His regret was that his mother, who had struggled for years to raise him and eight other children, had not lived to share his winnings.

Goodno won without spending a single penny. The winning ticket was given to him by a friend, whose identity he guarded.

Woman's Gift,

Ernest has endured struggles which would have discouraged most youths.

His father died when he was six months old.

He was the youngest of four children then. His mother was left without a penny.

Three years latre his mother married Robert McLeod, a local merchant. Five more children were born, bringing the family to nine. Money was never plentiful.

After his mother died he and his sister, Ernestine, went to live with their uncle, Charles Lyman.

It was at Lyman's home that the reporter found the boy sweepstakes winner.

His One Regret

Here is the boy's story:

"It doesn't seem possible that I could be the winner. In the face of the luck I have had it seems impossible that I would win.

"I cannot tell you how happy I am. Yet I have one regret.

"That is that my mother isn't here to enjoy my luck with me. If she were I would give her every cent.

"I, of course, owe something to my uncle and aunt. I shall repay them. As a matter of fact I shall probably name my uncle custodian of the money.

"Best of all I will be able to go back to school. I have been working in the canning factory over in Freyburg, Me., for the past two weeks getting about $15. I thought I would have to give up school.

"I hope to be able to go to college."

'Unwanted' Bride City's Problem

Worcester, Sept. 9—Grace Woodill, 17, today approached the status of a bride nobody wants.

Worcester authorities prepared a formal demand that San Francisco "take back" the girl who hitch-hiked across the continent to join her husband of six months, only to quarrel with him and swallow poison last Friday.

She has been discharged from the hospital and is a welfare case.

Worcester doesn't want her and the authorities have received no indication the husband, Leland Woodill, is interested. Whether California will take her back remains to be seen.

Woodill and the girl were married while he was in the army on the Pacific coast. Honorably discharged, he came home without her and recently she followed.

Authorities have decided she is not a vagrant because she has a husband here.

Labor Split

John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, has placed himself at the head of two significant—or ominous—movements.

As the head of the Committee for Industrial Organization—supporting the "industrial union" idea as opposed to "craft unions"—he has defied the Executive Committee of the American Federation of Labor.

As leader of the Labor Non-Partisan League, he is supporting President Roosevelt and the New Deal in the national election campaign.

In a series of illuminating articles, of which this is the first, an outstanding authority on radical movements discusses Mr. Lewis and tells who some of his followers are in both of his new ventures.

By HAROLD LORD VARNEY

NINE years ago, an earnest young man rose in the convention of the United Mine Workers and demanded the floor.

"State your name!" commanded John L. Lewis, glowering at the interrupter under heavy eyebrows.

"Powers Hapgood," came the answer.

"Sit down!" Lewis bellowed, while a number of hard-faced delegates began to circle around the offender with audible remarks about "Communist disrupters." "You are not a member of the United Mine Workers and if I hear another word out of you, you will be ejected from the convention and conducted to the street."

The young man subsided.

On June 22, 1936, the same Powers Hapgood, now a member of the national executive committee of the Socialist party, made his entrance into Camden, N. J., where a strike, outlawed by the American Federation of Labor, was being waged against the R. C. A. Company by the C. I. O. under the direction of John L. Lewis.

This time Hapgood did not receive an interloper's greeting.

On the contrary, he came to Camden as the personal representative of Lewis to take command of the strike and to induce the strikers into the Communist technique of mass picketing. The bloody Camden riot of June with its casualty list of 22 persons was the quick result.

IN these two incidents—seemingly disconnected — we have a picture of the incredible political about-face which John L. Lewis has executed since 1927.

Since Mr. Lewis still talks in the reassuring language of Liberalism, it is a transformation which is yet unrecognized even by some of his own associates.

Its reality, however, is grimly attested by the broken unity of the once indivisible American Federation of Labor, by the threat of gigantic strikes which hangs, like a Damoclean sword, over Pittsburgh, Detroit and Akron; by a new assurance and truculence of manner which is creeping into the language of left-wing agitators everywhere.

In the new Lewis orientation, the student of social trends perceives almost breath-taking possibilities.

Wherever Leftists gather together privately today, men are already whispering to each other hopefully that, at last, the American revolution has found itself a Stalin.

NOT that Mr. Lewis himself encourages such talk.

His public position is still the correctly restrained attitude of a reformist supporter of the present economic system.

But radicalism seems to have no illusions concerning the Lewis disclaimers.

In the Communist nominating convention in New York on June 25th, "Comrade" Jack Stachel, chief of Red agitation in the trade unions, rose to report that "THE COMMUNIST PARTY FULLY SUPPORTS THE POLICIES OF THE COMMITTEE ON INDUSTRIAL ORGANIZATION."

On July 23rd, on the eve of the meeting of the A. F. of L. executive council at Washington, the official Communist DAILY WORKER reiterated this position in a bold-face editorial proclaiming that "at this vital hour, unity of the trade union movement stands out as all-important—UNITY ON THE BASIS OF THE C. I. O. PROGRAM."

Meanwhile Mr. Lewis himself exhibits an unaccustomed friendliness toward the official Communists.

In 1935, his [illegible] of the Comrades [illegible] him to promise the Senate Finance Committee in Washington that "if given the right to organize in our major industries, labor can police those industries against Communism."

Today we see him so little alarmed over the Reds that, on July 5th, he used the DAILY WORKER as his mouthpiece for an exclusive statement long-distanced from Washington, and in the July issue of FIGHT, the organ of the Communist-officered American League Against War and Fascism, he appeared as one of the featured contributors.

It is a significant reversal.

HOWEVER, it is in the C. I. O. setup that one catches the most ominous indication of the present Lewis drift.

A TALLY OF THE PERSONNEL WHICH HE HAS GATHERED AROUND HIM IN THE C. I. O. STAFF SOUNDS LIKE A ROLLCALL OF THE AMERICAN RADICAL MOVEMENT.

If any unemployed Left troublemaker of former days has been overlooked, Mr. Lewis may be depended upon to find him.

Probably most tell-tale name on the list is that of John Brophy, whom Lewis has disinterred from obscurity to be the C. I. O. executive director.

Another article in this series by Harold Lord Varney will appear in tomorrow's Boston Evening American.

CASH BID MADE FOR AMOSKEAG HOLDINGS

Rauch, recently resigned secretary of the company the hearings were postponed until September 15 to wait on the outcome of the New York bid.

The investigation to determine what became of the Amoskeag funds during the years the company was in operation is expected to take more than four weeks.

Meanwhile a check for $5,000,000 from the Manchester Rehabilitation Committee, for the company plant at Manchester, has been tentatively accepted by the liquidating agents.

Despite this offer and the existence of other liquid and quick assets, the Sabath committee investigation will continue as planned.

$16,000,000 ASSETS

There exists, in fact, a possibility that the federal investigating committee may even object to the sale of the mills because of the company's financial set-up, which shows that the company has some $16,000,000 in quick assets, of which $9,000,000 is in cash.

Part of the quick assets is represented by approximately $2,500,000 due back from the federal government on processing taxes, which have been declared illegal.

An additional $153,000 in processing taxes is held in escrow by the clerk of court at Concord, N. H.

It has also been brought up that besides the quick assets, one of the most valuable holdings of the company is the name "Amoskeag" itself, a trade name known throughout the world as representing quality. This name is figured as worth at least $1,000,000.

MAY OPPOSE SALE

Proof of the regard in which the name Amoskeag is held is in the Amoskeag bonds, which two months ago were selling for $40, but which now are quoted at $100.

Also, the company common stock, selling a month ago for 25 cents, is now up to $3.50.

Because of all this, it is understood the Sabath committee cannot see any reason for liquidation of the company, and on this ground probably will object to the sale of the property.

men gratefully crowding in to sleep on the ground and drink water from the well protected castle well when fierce bearded men came marauding through the passes from the north, or Saracens, Phoenicians, or Normans came prowling along the coast in the pirate ships, to kill and gather slaves.

The wall around that old castle still stands but it could keep out no modern enemy. No ships with sharp beaks come to rob and murder. The next enemy will come from above, through the air, with cold scientific pilots high out of reach dropping bombs.

Walls no longer mean protection; grape vines, heavily laden, cover the court where frightened peasants once found refuge, beneath the spears and shields of fighters on the walls, and high in the castle tower above.

A thousand old castles and towers recall a poem in which the great Jewish-German poet Heine describes one ancient castle:

Gras bedeckt jetzt den turnierplatz,
We gekaempft der stolze mann,
Der die besten ueberwunden
Und des kampfes preis gewann.
Efeu rankt an dem balkone,
Wo die schoene dame stand,
Die den stolzen ueberwinder
Mit den augen ueberwand.

Translated, roughly, Heine's verses mean:

"Grass covers the jousting court, where the pround man fought, conquered the strongest, and won the battle prize.

"Ivy covers the balcony where stood the beautiful lady, who, with her eyes, conquered the proud conquerer."

The last four lines are sad, for the old:

Ach! den sieger und die siegrin
Hat besiegt des todes hand—
Jener duerre sensenritter
Streckt uns alle in den sand!

"Oh, the conqueror and the lady conqueror have been conquered by death's hand. That harsh 'scythe-bearer' stretches us all in the dust."

The "translation" would make Heine shudder, but readers write angry letters, when anything foreign is not translated.

Dense Fog Knots Land, Sea, Air Traffic

Hundreds of commuters from Nantasket and Pemberton were delayed by a heavy fog which blanketed Boston Harbor, causing boats from the South Shore to arrive more than a half hour late.

The thick fog was reported all along the North and South Shores.

So dense was the fog over East Boston airport that the Mayflower Airlines, Inc., tri-motored ship "Nantucket Clipper" was forced to circle out as far as Natick airport before making a landing.

The six passengers aboard the plane, which was making its daily trip between points on the Cape and Boston, were taken in taxicabs to the Hub.

Many of the Boston business men, making their homes along the South Shore, and accustomed to reach Boston from Nantasket in 42 minutes, arrived only after an hour and twenty minutes. The boat which left Nantasket at 7:45 this morning sideswiped two buoys as it proceeded slowly through the Narrows in the harbor.

Even the ferries from East Boston to Rowe's Wharf, carrying thousands every Monday from Revere, Lynn and other points along the North Shore, crossed the harbor at an exceedingly low rate of speed because of the heavy fog.

FOIL PROWLER IN MALDEN

A prowler, gaining entrance through a first floor bedroom window, was frightened away by the screams of two Malden women today.

Mrs. Aaron Levin, Mt. Vernon street, was awakened by a man standing in front of her bureau. She screamed and the man dashed through the kitchen to the street. Alone in the house at the time, Mrs. Levin ran up the street to a relative who reported the incident to the police. Mrs. Levin said the man snatched $5 which was on the bureau.

About an hour later Mrs. John F. Griffin, Bryant street, was similarly awakened and saw a man standing with a flashlight near the bureau. When her screams sent the prowler dashing out the front door, she chased him in her nightclothes to the street.

From descriptions given by the two women, police said they believe in both instances the prowler was the same man.

BANKERS SUED FOR $800,000

John A. Cousens, president of Tufts College and the Brookline Savings Bank, and Ernest B. Dane, president of the Brookline Trust Company, were named co-defendants today in an $800,000 suit filed in Dedham superior court by John F. Fleming of Brookline.

Also named as co-defendants were the two banks and the Colonial Beacon Oil Company.

In the suit, Fleming, who endeavored in vain three years ago, to obtain a permit to operate a fleet of jinrickshaws in Brookline, charges a conspiracy which successfully deprived him of valuable property at Washington street and Brookline.

It is alleged by Fleming that Dane, Cousens and the banks, after refusing to aid him in procuring a permit to operate a filling station on the property, under lease to the Colonial-Beacon, conspired to foreclose on the land and then secured the permit.

The Brookline Trust Company, which held one of the mortgages on the property, bid it in, Fleming asserts, and then Dane, who previously had refused to aid Fleming in obtaining a permit, personally went before the Brookline selectmen and favored its issuance.

FRENCH STRIKE SPREADS; RED CRISIS GRAVE

Paris, Sept. 9 (AP)—The entire port of Le Havre was tied up today as a new epidemic of strikes spread through France.

All activity ceased when dockworkers quit in mid-afternoon joining the 30,000 men and women who struck earlier in the great Lille textile region.

The textile strike was the largest in the new movement with the exception of a metal workers' one-hour walkout in Paris Monday, when more than 200,000 men dropped their tools to protest against the government's refusal to aid Madrid in its civil war.

At Lille, the workers occupied the mills and demanded a 15 per cent wage increase. The dispute also involved election of workers' delegates.

BLUM FACES CRISIS

Meanwhile the future of France's neutrality in the Spanish civil war lay concealed today in a carefully guarded pronouncement by officials of the general confederation of labor.

French workers, whose demand of "Arms and planes for Spain" started the series of occupational strikes, looked ahead to the statement by the administrative committee of the federation. The explanation was expected to be made [illegible] today.

If the pronouncement should throw labor's support to the Communists clamoring for strikes to force revision of the government's non-intervention policy, the cabinet of Premier Leon Blum would be plunged into a critical situation, observers declared.

AID FOR SPAIN

Many believed, however, the federation, which claims membership of 5,000,000, would not seek to upset the People's Front government at present at least, although Leon Jouhaux, Labor League president, is known to favor assistance to the Socialist Madrid administration.

On the strike front 15,000 workers laid down their tools in [illegible] and near Marseille after voicing a double demand: Revision of the neutrality policy and speedier application of the 40-hour work week voted by the French parliament.

Communists continued their demands for Spanish intervention with new warnings that a Fascist victory in Spain would lead to a Fascist coup in France. The extreme Leftists charged French [illegible] to [illegible], Austria, were [illegible].

LISBON REVOLT LAID TO REDS

Lisbon, Sept. 9 (INS)—The crews of two Portuguese warships which mutinied [illegible] were influenced by Communist funds and propaganda," it was announced today following official investigation of the incident which resulted in six deaths.

Acting under instructions from Communist headquarters, the announcement said, the crews planned to take the ships into Spanish waters and join Spanish Loyalists.

"Their intention was to take the vessels either to Valencia or Malaga and there enlist on the side of the Spanish Reds," a spokesman said.

Hitler Cites Demand for Colonies

(Copyright, 1936, by the Associated Press.)

Nurnberg, Germany, Sept. 9—Reichs Chancellor Adolf Hitler today proclaimed a four-year program, embracing aggressive colonial demands, aimed at the goal of making Germany economically independent of the rest of the world.

The proclamation, sounded suddenly before 890,000 Nazis assembled in fourth annual convention, disclosed Der Fuehrer has signed decrees reorganizing the national economy and fixing the planned production of all industrial and agricultural products.

QUESTION OF ENERGY

"Their realization," he declared, "is only a question of our energy and determination."

"Our colonial demands," the proclamation went on, "are part and parcel of this program.

"We must build up our raw material forces."

The "raising by bootstraps" decrees also contained schemes for increasing German exports, but the details were not disclosed in the proclamation, which was read by Adolf Wagner, the Bavarian Nazi leader.

VOICE LIKE HITLER'S

Wagner, who imitates Hitler's voice so perfectly that it seemed as if Der Fuehrer himself was speaking, asserted the Reich had been made politically independent in the last four years, hence the next four would be devoted to economic independence.

In the proclamation Hitler declared the "rightness" of Nazi principles has been demonstrated by "our constantly recurring successes" in the midst of a troubled world.

Passing at length the industrial and economic achievements of his regime, Der Fuehrer pointed with pride to his building program and, extolling "regeneration" of Germany's [illegible]: "This occurred without a single Jew being in a position of influence."

Thunderous applause greeted the reading of this section of the proclamation.

He contrasted "unrest" elsewhere in the world with the "peaceful" Olympic games in Germany and added:

"Even the Jewish scribes can no longer lie about us. What we have achieved we have done at nobody else's expense. If other nations had attended to their own business there would be a stronger community of interest in Europe today."

Other governments, the Reichschancellor stated, had nowhere near the difficulties of Germany chiefly because of Germany's limited soil area [illegible] density of her population. He continued:

"Germany is compelled to obtain raw materials by the sale of industrial goods abroad. It is regrettable that the world does not understand this.

EXPLAINS EXPORTS

"To buy one unit of fat, several units of German products must be exported. We must export at all costs.

"It shows a lamentable lack of understanding of our position when we are criticized for low export prices.

"Had Germany not lost her colonies, we could master our difficulties more easily. A state leadership like that in Germany today would know how to convert colonies into economic success."

Hitler's proclamation also ripped sharply into Communism, declaring in [illegible] words that "bad times [illegible] all about us."

He denounced "Communist wirepullers," and said "we National Socialists never have feared, but [illegible] when we always have [illegible]."

new proof that the first personality of the republic has no authority."

Meanwhile, Lieut.-Col. Yague's Legionaries and Moroccans consolidated their positions for a final push which may relieve the embattled cadets in Spain's West Point, the Alcazar in Toledo.

The siege of the Alcazar has become the principal epic of the civil war.

For 52 days 1500 whites, mostly cadets of the infantry officers' school, from the ages of 16 to 19, fought off overwhelmingly superoir forces of Reds.

BATTERED, BUT STANDS

The siege has proved that the ancient citadel, with its ten-foot-thick walls, is as good as a modern fortress against anything but 16-inch siege guns. Its deep subterranean passages afforded perfect refuge from aerial bombs.

It contains its own water supply, only food was scarce until lately White airplanes flew over and dropped supplies by parachute.

Reds Ferret Into Ancient Alcazar, Where 1700 Hide

Copyright, 1936, by Associated Press

Madrid, Sept. 9—Unofficial reports reaching the Spanish capital today said government militiamen had entered the subterranean passages of the Toledo Alcazar, in which 1700 Fascist rebels have defied siege for nearly eight weeks.

Rebel guns within the Alcazar, for the first time since July 20, were mute last night and authorities believed daily pounding by six and 10-inch shells had driven the Fascists, including men, women and children, from the upper parts of the ancient and crumbling fortress.

Machine gun detachments and hundreds of militiamen with hand grenades were ready to storm the building, the walls of which have been torn apart by the long artillery bombardment.

Today's reports indicated advance scouting parties had gone ahead into the lower tunnels of the fortress.

Some advices, which could not be confirmed, even stated the rebels had surrendered.

Red Torch Waits to Burn Sebastian After Fall

Hendaye, Sept. 9 (INS)—Rebel forces, brushing aside bargaining offers made by Governor Joe Ortega, today were reported on the outskirts of San Sebastian.

Inside that doomed resort where, according to refugees, rebel hostages are being executed at the rate of 30 daily, Ortega continued desperate efforts to save the city from the fiery fate that reduced neighboring Irun to ashes.

Governor Ortega summoned a meeting of Basque Nationalists, Communists and Socialists, to enlist their aid in rounding up anarchies, who already have planted gasoline and other explosives in buildings where almost the entire city can be set aflame at once when the insurgents enter.

Portugal's Envoy Absent From Neutrality Parley

London, Sept. 9 (AP)—A European non-intervention committee, discouraged by the absence of Portugal, met in initial session today and agreed on an exchange of information concerning steps taken by various countries to isolate the Spanish civil war.

The representatives of two dozen countries expressed regret that Portugal's seat was vacant, but nevertheless waded into the problem of making neutrality effective.

JAPAN'S NAVAL MOVE SCORED

Washington, Sept. 9 (AP)—Secretary Swanson asserted today that Japanese plans to retain 15,598 tons of over-age submarines would involve "a violation" of the London naval treaty.

In the first official comment on Japanese proposals to invoke the "escalator" clause for submarines partly to compensate for destroyers to be retained by Great Britain, the navy chief said nothing would be done by the United States "until we know definitely that they are going to do it."

MAYOR, DEVER IN CLASH AT QUABBIN QUIZ

question written on a piece of paper. The mayor then did this. Mott's testimony dealt with the records of the meetings and votes taken by the commission.

At one time during Mott's testimony, the attorney-general interrupted the proceedings when he observed Mayor Mansfield and Thomas G. Lavelle, a member of the commission, in conversation.

MAYOR RETORTS

"If you want to continue," Dever stated, addressing the mayor, "You had beter go outside."

"As mayor of Boston I should be given consideration," Mayor Mansfield retorted.

Dever replied:

"I'm conducting the investigation and in an orderly manner."

When the mayor accused the attorney-general of "backing the contracts," Dever stated:

"You should withdraw the remark."

When the mayor declined, he continued:

TELLS OF CONTRACTS

"You have been in court long enough to be courteous."

"Yes, and I have been in court long enough to know what is going on here," retorted Mayor Mansfield.

When he was on the stand, Mayor Mansfield charged that a subcontract for rock excavation at the reservoir was let at a price 600 per cent higher than that for which another contractor had agreed to do the work.

CONTRACT FOR EXCAVATION

Referring to the Cenedella Company, Mayor Mansfield stated that the contract awarded thiscompany called for rock excavation at $7.50 per square yard and dirst excavation at 60 cents while the Foster contract covered similar work at $1.20 and 45 cents. He pointed out that the Cendella price was 600 per cent over that of the Foster company.

Prior to the inquiry, Attorney-General Dever disclosed a letter he had received from City Councillor Henry L. Shattuck, one of the mostactive opponets to the awarding of the two contracts, who had previously charged it was costing the citizens of Boston $200,000.

Shattuck charged both companies were awarded contracts "without advertising, without inviting other contractors to submit bids and without competition of any kind."

SHATTUCK'S LETTER

The letter of Shattuck's stated in part:

"It will appear that the work given the Two Company, Inc., was a part of that awarded as lowest bidder to the Foster company and that the unit prices given the Two Company, Inc., were very far in excess of those contained in the accepted bid of the Foster Company."

Shattuck charged that specifications for the road which the Cenedella Company has been asked to construct were not prepared when the company was given the work. He said some of the land over which the road is to run has not been acquired by the commonwealth.

Mayor Thomas S. Burgin of Quincy, also opposed to the awarding of the contracts, wired Attorney-General Dever that he would be unable to attend, but requested that he be sent an opinion after the inquiry is over.

ASKS RIGID PROBE

"I most earnestly favor a rigid investigation of the entire procedure and that information concerning the letting of contracts be made public," Mayor Burgin concluded in his wire.

All members of the commission, Thomas G. Lavelle, Huttman and Edward J. Kelley, recently appointed by Governor Curley to replace Charles M. Davenport, were present.

Also sworn in by the Attorney-General were Executive Councillors Daniel H. Coakley and Winfield Schuster.

Sleeplessness

Comes from Constipation

Loss of sleep—a waning appetite—low spirits—these are only a few of the symptoms of constipation.

They warn that poisons from the waste matter are being absorbed by the blood and carried to all parts of your body. Your vitality is lowered until you become a prey to serious disease.

Constipation is dangerous for anybody. Nujol is safe for everybody. It does not affect the stomach, and is not absorbed by the body. Medical authorities approve Nujol because it is so safe, so gentle and so natural in its action.

Nujol makes up for a deficiency of natural lubricant in the intestines. It softens the waste matter and thus permits thorough and regular bowel movements without griping.

Just try Nujol regularly for the next month and see if you don't feel better than you ever suspected you could.

Nation-Wide Poll

Party 'Geography' Shakeup Seen

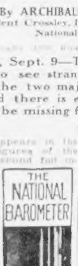
By ARCHIBALD M. CROSSLEY

President Crossley, Inc., and Director of the National Barometer

(Copyright, 1936, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

New York, Sept. 9—The coming presidential election is likely to see strange things happening to the geography of the two major parties—the South alone excepted. And there is even some indication that a state or so may be missing from the traditionally "solid" South.

This possibility appears in the first nation-wide figures of the Crossley poll, the second full installment of which with exact figures will appear in next Sunday's Boston Sunday Advertiser.



Trademark Applied For.

Since the actual work of interviewing voters in every congressional district, on a scientific statistical plan designed to give a true cross-section of the total vote, got under way ten days ago, some interesting geographical variations have developed, indicating that the prevalence of political parties can no longer be viewed in the historic sectional way.

Landon, for instance, is given considerable preference as far over Roosevelt, in Maine, Vermont, Massachusetts and Connecticut, New England States traditionally Republican, but New Hampshire and Rhode Island are in in the "doubtful" category, with an edge in each so far for Roosevelt.

CENTRAL VALLEY BELT

The poll also shows Landon leading in Ohio, Indiana and Kansas, with an edge in doubtful Iowa, in the Great Central Valley belt, but shows Nebraska with the 5 per cent Roosevelt edge and a 21 per cent "undecided" vote.

Of the northerly and Lake states, preponderantly Republican prior to 1932, Michigan, Wisconsin and the Dakotas are quite heavily Roosevelt, while Minnesota is a doubtful state with almost the heaviest "pivotal" vote in the nation—23.7 per cent listed as "undecided," while another 14.2 per cent voted "Landon" or "Roosevelt" with the proviso that they might still change their minds.

In the mountain and plateau belt Wyoming stands out as a Landon state, while Montana is a Roosevelt stronghold, and Colorado, Utah and Nevada are virtually even-Steven, with heavy proportions of undecided voters by the notably up-to-date national barometer tabulation.

LABOR BATTLEGROUND

Pennsylvania and West Virginia, Illinois and New York, all with large labor and industrial votes, are battlegrounds and in the "doubtful" column.

But Ohio, also with a strong labor vote, is in the Landon column, while labor apparently contributes to the Roosevelt advantage in California and Michigan.

Of the Pacific Coast states, California and Oregon are heavily Roosevelt, while Washington is doubtful with a 20 per cent "undecided" vote.

New Jersey is typical of the 17 states in which the Roosevelt and Landon votes are a virtual balance, with the verdict in the hands of the "undecided" bloc—in this case, nearly 10 per cent.

The answer to the election-victory lies, according to National Barometer poll, with the "doubtful vote in the doubtful states"—emphasizing the importance of campaign developments.

The Crossley Poll, most complete, fastest and most scientific of the pre-election presidential surveys, runs daily in the Boston Evening American and Sunday in the Boston Sunday Advertiser.

Roosevelt Plans Cut In Cabinet

New York, Sept. 9 (AP)—The New York Times said today in a dispatch from Washington that President Roosevelt is considering for submission to Congress, in event of his re-election, a far-reaching plan of governmental reorganization.

"Whatever the President finally proposes," the Times said, "one may hear in informed quarters now that the regular cabinet posts might be decreased in such an extensive plan as he has been considering."

A possibility, the Times stated, would be consolidation of the Amy, Navy and Air Corps in a department of national defense.

The President's committee on administrative management, the dispatch continued, is rushing an exhaustive study of the federal establishment, but detailed recommendations will not be ready be-fulness until a comprehensive

Richardson Aid to Gulesian Hit

Because he allegedly introduced Moses H. Gulesian as "the only candidate for United States senator," Glenn Richardson has been dropped as eastern office manager of the Townsend movement, it was revealed today.

The information came from Captain Delbert Brunton of Chicago, member of the national headquarters, who said he is in Boston "trying to straighten out difficulties which have arisen in the Massachusetts area."

The vote to drop Richardson was taken last night in Worcester at a meeting of organizers and area board delegates.

Although Guy M. Gray of Greenfield, a lawyer, is reported as favored by the organizers and board delegates to succeed Richardson, Captain Brunton said no successor has been picked and that when one is he will be an appointee of the national headquarters.

Gray is a Republican and in the Republican convention was unsuccessful in opposing the endorsement of Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., as the party nominee for United States senator.

"A great many of the Townsend clubs had lost confidence in Richardson," said Captain Brunton, "and we felt that he should be removed from further duty.

"There are no accusations we can make against Richardson. However, Gulesian will be free to talk to Townsend club members."

Charles A. Poff, former advisory board chairman for the Worcester Townsend Clubs, in whose district the ousting was voted, said a "housecleaning" is taking place in the organization.

"This prior endorsement Gulesian is now null and void," declared Poff.

TALMADGE VOTE TEST FOR DEAL IN GEORGIA

By the Associated Press

A vehement campaign culminated today in a Georgia primary of national interest, while political observers followed the returns from five other state primaries.

The Georgia balloting was a test of strength between Governor Eugene Talmadge, emphatic critic of New Deal policies, and Senator Richard B. Russell, Jr., upholder of the Roosevelt administration. They fought for the Democratic senatorial nomination, equivalent to election.

WASHINGTON PRIMARY

Mounting returns from yesterday's primaries showed these results:

WASHINGTON STATE—After a see-saw race, Gov. Clarence D. Martin went into the lead over John C. Stevenson, backed by a Production-For-Use organization, for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination. Partial returns gave Martin 67,966, Stevenson 51,549. Former Gov. Roland H. Hartley led in the Rpublican contest, Warren G. Magnuson, Production for Use Candidate, and Frederick J. Wettrick led for the Democratic and Republican nominations, sional race. Townsend old age pension candidates were headed toward victory in four Congressional districts.

AIKEN NOMINATED

VERMONT—A horticulturist, Lieutenant-Governor George D. Aiken, won the Republican nomination for governor. He defeated H. Nelson Jackson, banker and newspaper owner, by more than 3000 votes. State Senator Alfred H. Heininger was unopposed for the Democratic nomination.

SOUTH CAROLINA—G. Heyward Mahon, merchant, captured the Democratic nomination for the late Rep. John J. McSwain's seat in Congress.

COLORADO—Governor Ed. C. Johnson was in the van for Democratic senatorial nomination, leading former Governor William E. Sweet by more than 2 to 1. Johnson claimed victory.

ARIZONA—R. C. Stanford, former jurist and foe of Arizona's sales tax, jumped well ahead of Governor B. B. Moeur in the Democratic gubernatorial fight. Thomas E. Campbell, twice governor in the past, had a long lead for the Republican honors.

ALASKA—Congressional delegate, Anthony J. Dimond, Valdez Democrat, piled up slightly more than a two-to-one lead over Lester O. Gore, Ketchikan Republican, today in early returns of the Alaska general election.

Perkins, 'Victim' of NRA, to Aid GOP

New York, Sept. 9 (AP)—Fred C. Perkins, York, Pa., battery manufacturer who was convicted of violating the National Recovery Act, has joined the speakers' staff of the Republican national committee, it was announced today at the G. O. P. eastern division headquarters. Perkins said:

"Four years more of Rooseveltism and we could easily get beyond the safeguards that protect American traditions."

G.O.P. ELECTION LISTS TARGET OF M'GLUE

Almost on the eve of the primaries, Charles H. McGlue, Democratic chairman of the state ballot law commission, a Curley appointee and former campaign manager for Governor Curley, launched an attack today upon Republican registration of voters.

McGlue, who was campaign manager for Curley two years ago, declared he would seek to "purge election lists of 50,000 illegally registered Republicans in small towns in this state."

"I have personal knowledge of cities and towns which have thousands of illegally registered Republicans," McGlue said at a commission hearing today.

"I am going to see what I can do to make these municipalities comply with the statutes, and the Republicans will not stop me in this fight."

DEFENDS BALLOT RULING

McGlue's assertion came during a defense of his action, and that of his Democratic associate, Whitfield Tuck, who ruled off the ballot two candidates against whom no specific protests had been filed.

McGlue explained that the candidates, Joseph Ahern and Fred J. Hogan, told the board they did not think their nomination papers contained enough valid signatures and therefore wished to have their names removed from the ballot, although the final day for withdrawal had already passed.

The Republican member of the board, Francis W. Estey, opposed this action and asserted McGlue and Tuck had adopted an attitude of "what is the Constitution among friends."

"BLANKET PROTEST"

McGlue explained the majority of the board acted under a blanket protest Democratic state Chairman Joseph McGrath had filed against "any and all papers of any and all candidates" of cities and towns which have violated election statutes.

Other hearings before the commission, McGlue continued, showed errors in handling of nomination papers in Boston. Accordingly, McGlue added, the blanket protest applied to Hogan and Ahern, who sought the Democratic nomination for register of probate in Suffolk county.

"My Republican associate does not agree with me about this blanket quota."

The withdrawal of Ahern and Hogan, McGlue explained, left the present register of probate, Arthur Sullivan, unopposed for Democratic renomination.

McGlue then launched into his charge of illegal Republican registration which McGrath had also filed a protest against involving two cities and 84 towns, chiefly in rural sections, which traditionally vote Republican.

By way of illustration, he cited the town of Ipswich, where, he said, 198 out of 2707 were illegally or improperly registered. Some of those improperly registered, he said, were not included in assessors lists of inhabitants, and others were aliens. In Deerfield, he said, there were "over 300 names of that type."

Vatican Approves Paper's Rebuke Of Fr. Coughlin

By FRANK GERVASI

International News Service Staff Correspondent

Vatican City, Sept. 9—Through its regular press channels, the Vatican today gave official support to the recent editorial in the newspaper Osservatore Romano criticizing the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin for his attacks upon "constituted authority."

This editorial, which also chided Bishop Michael A. Gallagher of Detroit for his support of the "radio priest," led the former to declare Osservatore is not an official or semi-official organ of the Vatican and that its editorial expressions carry no weight.

In answer to this charge by the Bishop, the Vatican's press bureau issued the following brief statement:

"The note published by Osservatore Romano represents exactly the position of the Holy See regarding polemic political activities against constituted authorities when a person engaged in such activities is a priest."

The Vatican's position as outlined is that no one, particularly a priest, has the right to attack public authorities when the inevitable result is that "respect for authority on the part of the people is l wered."

From an authoritative source it was learned the Vatican state department has expressed belief Father Coughlin's political speeches will be greatly modified when he resumes his radio broadcasts.

Former Governor Joseph B. Ely is to be the principal speaker at exercises in observance of National Constitution Day, to be held in Faneuil Hall here September 17.

The former governor announced today that he had accepted the invitation of Archibald Giroux, chairman of the National Constitution Day Committee, to speak at the exercises. He said:

"In recent months we have witnessed both direct and inferential attacks on our Constitution, emanating even from the President of the United States.

"Not only have there been numerous indirect attacks on the charter of liberty but there are, today, pending in the Congress of the Unite' States, proposed amendments to overthrow it.

Five Pairs of Twins at Luncheon For Hobbs Sisters

By BETTY ALDEN

THOUGH TWINS are a double joy . . . they are also "double trouble," their mothers will assure you . . .

One girl is enough of a problem . . . plenty of work and care for mother . . . and plenty of expense for dad who has to sign the checks . . .

But twins mean double work for mother . . . and for papa, double checks . . .

DEBORAH BANKHART

This is even more true if the family is of social prominence and the twins must make their debuts . . . Mrs. Walter L. Hobbs of Brookline and Nahant, who has been seeing double for the last three or four weeks while getting two of everything ready for the coming out party of her twin daughters, Anna and Clementine, at least has the consolation that three other Boston mothers are presenting twins this season and will encounter the same problems . . .

This afternoon all four sets of twins on the deb list were present at the Hobbs luncheon, with a set of post-deb twins added for good measure . . . Clementine and Anna were the hostesses and the other twins were Eleanor and Virginia Morss, daughters of Mrs. Henry A. Morss . . . Nancy and Penelope Hill, daughters of Dr. and Mrs. Lewis Webb Hill of Jamaica Plain . . . Mimi and Betsy Van Antwerp, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. George T. Van Antwerp . . . and Virginia and Eugenia Smith, post-deb twins of the Ransom Smith household in Winchester . . .

The hostesses, who entertained their friends at luncheon, had everyone guessing as to who was who as they received in semi-formal gowns of green satin crepe, made on tunic lines with rhinestone trimming . . . They both carried arm bouquets of delphinium, cosmos and gypsophelia tied with silver ribbons . . .

Mrs. Hobbs' gown was the color of crushed raspberries, and had silver trimming to match her silver slippers . . . Her eldest daughter, who is a junior at Radcliffe and a debutante of two seasons ago, wore a princess style gown of blue crepe as she assisted her sisters in receiving . . .

Probably one of the most excited of all their guests was Dorothy Ober whose coming out plans have suddenly been turned topsy-turvy . . . instead of going to Smith and making her debut during the Christmas holidays, Dorothy has recently decided to spend the winter at Geneva College in Switzerland and travel in other countries during vacations . . . This necessitated a change in debut plans so her mother, Mrs. Merton E. Ober of Winchester, has sent out invitations for a luncheon at the Ritz-Carlton on Saturday, September 19, just ten days before Dot sails on the Europa for Geneva . . .

Deborah Bankhart of Swampscott, who will come out next year, and Catherine Davenport of Winchester, who gave a large luncheon last spring for her classmates at the May School, will go over with Miss Ober . . . With all due respect to their good intentions towards their studies at Geneva College, we suspect that the highlight of the trio's sojourn abroad will be the coronation of King Edward which they are going to attend next May . . .

Nancy Cochrane Enjoys Argument

ONE OF THESE DAYS some doctor on the North Shore will have to temporarily forsake his regular practice and the vaccination of children returning to school, to act as arbiter in a scientific debate on anatomy . . . The other day at the Myopia Horse Show, one could see that Nancy Cochrane had a weighty problem on her mind . . . for as soon as she finished riding in one of the early classes, she pulled off her heavy black riding jacket and sat in her white westkit, on the bumper of a car to argue with a friend . . . not about horses and equine matters, but of all things, about the position of the heart in the human body . . . An interested group of debs and sub-debs sat about on the bumper and the grass, with straws in pop bottles and giving ear to the discussion . . . Miss Cochrane contends that the heart is in the middle of the chest with a large lobe on the left, and we think she is right . . . while her contemporary scientist contended that the vital organ is entirely on the left . . . A doctor is to be asked to settle the debate . . .

Speaking of North Shore debs, the week-end mail was literally flooded with invitations to debutante parties planned for dates in the near future . . . The same mail one morning brought cards from Mr. and Mrs. Henry Pratt McKean and the former's mother, Mrs. M. Graeme Haughton . . . the McKeans are giving a dance October 3 at their Beverly Farms home for their debutante daughter, Betsy, and preceding it Mrs. Haughton is entertaining some of Betsy's closest friends at dinner . . .

Spalding-Thomas Ceremony in October

PHILIP SPALDING, son of Mr. and Mrs. Philip L. Spalding of Milton, and his fiancee, Emily Augusta Thomas of New York, are hoping and praying that Indian summer will last until early October so they will have clear warm weather on their wedding day . . .

They have decided to be married October 6, at Redgate, the country estate of Mrs. Seth Edward Thomas, mother of the bride, in Morristown, New Jersey . . . Weather permitting, both ceremony and reception will be held in the garden . . .

The bride-to-be is the daughter of the late Seth Edward Thomas, Jr., of the famous clock family . . . Mr. Spalding is a Harvard graduate and member of the New York Stock Exchange . . .

HarvardMan Takes Bride

Miss Margaret Snow, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Chester Snow of Washington, D. C., was married Monday morning to Professor Paul Myron Linebarger, Jr., of Harvard. The Rev. Edward P. Kimball officiated at the ceremony in the Church of the Latter Day Saints, which was attended by the families only.

Dr. Snow, who was formerly professor of mathematics at the University of Idaho and is now with the Bureau of Standards, gave his daughter in marriage. Miss Janice Holland was maid of honor and Professor James Hart of the University of Virginia was the best man.

Following the ceremony, a wedding breakfast was given at the Iron Gate. Dr. and Mrs. Snow and Judge and Mrs. Linebarger, parents of the bridegroom, received with the newlyweds.

BENJAMIN GOODALE MARY DEWART

MARY DEWART and Benjamin Goodale only announced their engagement a month ago, so every party they attend is still a jolly round of best wishes and congratulations. Miss Dewart is the daughter of Rev. and Mrs. William Dewart of Beacon Hill and Manchester, and her fiance is the son of Percy A. Goodale of New York. They were photographed one evening recently as they greeted some friends between dances at the Casino in Magnolia.

Heavy Vote For 'Gleason'

Better hustle up, you folks who want that new Roxbury school named after John Eliot, apostle to the Indians, or after William L. Phinney, retired headmaster of the Dudley school, Roxbury.

You'd better hustle, because, if you don't, you'll never catch up with the group which is urging that the school be given the name of the late Representative John L. Gleason of Roxbury.

In today's mail, the Boston Evening American's School Name Ballot Editor received another big batch of "John L. Gleason school votes," sent in by the Mildred M. Harris Associates of Roxbury.

The late Representative Gleason's brother, now a member of the Boston City Council, and Mrs. Harris, a sister, who is a candidate for the Legislature, are organizing strong support for the choice of Gleason's name for the school.

Clip and mark the Roxbury School Name Ballot blank, which you'll find on this page of today's Boston Evening American.

Then mail or bring your ballot to the School Name Ballot Editor, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop square, Boston.

Clubwomen Plan Fight on Cancer

Madison, Wis., Sept. 9 (AP)—Proposed organization of a national women's society in the fight against cancer was discussed today by medical specialists attending the International Cancer Institute here.

Dr. C. C. Little of the American Society for the Control of Cancer outlined the program to enlist 2,000,000 clubwomen in the "women's field army against cancer."

Alice Lyons Is Bride

Members of the North Shore younger set have been agreeably surprised during the past few days at receiving cards from Dr. and Mrs. George A. Lyons of Swampscott, announcing the marriage of their daughter, Alice, to Charles Tifft, Jr., son of Mr. Charles Tifft of Boston. The wedding took place on September 1.

Mr. Tifft and his bride, who are now on a cruise to Bermuda, plan to return to Boston around November 1 and will be at home at 196 Beacon street.

The bride was graduated from the Brimmer school and the Katharine Gibbs school in Boston. Mr. Tifft was graduated from the Choate school and is now associated with his father in the brokerage business.

Girl Angler Lands 720-Pound Tuna

Sea Bright, N. J., Sept. 9 (AP)—The Manasquan River Marlin and Tuna Club gave four persons credit today for having caught the largest tuna fish taken this season in American waters.

The giant fish, weighing 720 pounds and measuring nine feet ten inches in length, was hooked by Miss Betty Page, 21, of Eustis, Fla., who brought it to gaff with the aid of three male companions.

The Pines, the Wakefield estate of Mrs. Charles N. Winship, will be the setting of the early fall bridge for the benefit of the Philomatheia college fund next Tuesday afternoon.

Mrs. M. J. McCarthy of Belmont, who successfully chairmaned the recent fete at Mrs. Vincent P. Robert's home in Scituate, will be in charge.

Serving as her assistants are members of the executive board, Mrs. John J. Williams of Cambridge, Mrs. David Gentles of Millis and Mrs. E. J. A'Hearn of Winthrop.

As usual Mrs. Daniel J. Holland of Jamaica Plain, will have charge of the subscriptions. She will be assisted by a corps of young daughters of the club members—Peggy, Virginia and Mary Rita Fouhy of Belmont, attractive daughters of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Fouhy, Anne and Margaret Holland, and Mary Bryan of Wellesley Hills.

Mrs. James W. Carr of Roslindale, will have charge of the prizes, Mrs. Edward Gallagher of Brighton, will direct the hostesses of the day and Mrs. Frank W. Regan will chairman the pivot bridge committee.

PLANS FOR BRIDAL

Amy Martin to Wed R. W. Chapin, 2d

Miss Amy Pemberton Martin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Martin of New York, has completed the plans for her wedding to Robert W. Chapin, 2d, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis LeBourgeois Chapin of Ipswich.

The Rev. William B. Lusk will perform the ceremony in St. Steven's Church in Ridgefield, Ct., next Saturday afternoon, September 12.

Miss Julia Whitney Martin, debutante sister of the bride, will be the maid of honor and the other attendants will be Miss Cecelia Drinker of Philadelphia, Miss Frances Letchford of Morristown, Miss Anne Rauch of Indianapolis, and Miss Nancy Wood of Philadelphia. Little Fanny Alice Martin will be flower girl.

Charles S. Tuckerman Chapin of Ipswich and New York, will be his brother's best man, while another brother, Louis LeBourgeois Chapin, Jr., will head the corps of ushers. Assisting him will be James E. Alsop of Boston, Frederic F. Raley, Jr., of Philadelphia, E. Everett Post of Morristown, Pa., and Edward Blagden of New York.

Following the ceremony a reception will be held at the summer home of the bride's parents in Wilton, Ct.

Just one week after the wedding, Miss Julia Martin will make her Philadelphia debut. She will share honors with Miss Mary Dunn Thayer at a dance which Mr. and Mrs. Joseph T. Thayer are giving at their Elkins Park home. Miss Martin will make her New York debut later in the season.

SEATTLE MAYOR LAUDS MOB RULE, SEIZURE OF PAPER

Special to American Newspapers, Incorporated

Seattle, Wash, Sept. 9—Openly making a pro-Roosevelt and pro-radical issue out of the violent suppression of the Seattle Post-Intelligencer, Mayor John F. Dore was on record today as using his power as head of the city government to compel submission of the mob-barricaded newspaper to a handful of striking editorial workers or abandon publication permanently.

Boasting that he considered himself a radical, the mayor made another similar partisan address at a Bellingham, Wash., labor gathering Monday. Urging the re-election in November of President Roosevelt and the defeat of the two leading conservative candidates for governor in yesterday's primaries—Governor Clarence D. Martin, Democrat, and former Governor Roland H. Hartley, Republican.

PROUD OF MOB RULE

His partisan appeal was linked with the enforced suspension of the Post-Intelligencer which he declared "is the finest thing that ever happened to the labor movement in this state."

At the same time, Dore openly gave credit for his election last spring to labor organizations, mentioning specifically the teamsters' union, whose leader is Dave Beck, Seattle labor czar. Beck is charged with having been a moving influence in the events leading up to the suspension of the Post-Intelligencer by a strong-arm mob of terrorists.

It was Beck who some time prior to the strike of 21 members of the American Newspaper Guild on the Post-Intelligencer staff gave out a public statement that he had spent "a very constructive ten minutes with Jim Farley" and that he had pledged undivided support of his powerful teamsters' union to help swing Washington and Oregon for Roosevelt.

FLAYS W. R. HEARST

Swinging into his pet theme—the suppression of the Post-Intelligencer, Dore cried:

"Hearst is the most bitter enemy of labor in the United States and probably in the world. And you never find a man who hates the workingman who does not hate Franklin D. Roosevelt at the same time.

"The same reasons why they attack labor unions are the same reasons why they attack Roosevelt, because this is the first time there has been anybody in the White House that would brush off the table a crumb for the worker."

Sheep Uses Rail Tracks For Pasture

Hundreds of commuters rubbed their eyes in North Station today as they gazed upon a sheep grazing about the railroad tracks.

How and where the animal came from was a question that Boston and Maine police could not answer.

Following a half hour chase, however, about the train shed police were successful in rounding up their victim.

Charged with "trespassing and being a vagrant" the sheep was taken to North End police station and "booked" until its owner turned up.

Lynn Judge Holds Bedside Court

Breakfast in bed and a bedside court were the accommodations offered by Lynn police today to Howard Baxter, 40, of Sutton street, Lynn.

Baxter fell into the clutches of the law last night on charges of drunkenness.

The prisoner became ill during the early morning hours and was removed from a cell to the first aid room in the police station.

This morning Judge Ralph Reeve went to the station and held court at the man's bedside.

Baxter, found guilty, had his case placed on file. The judge then ordered a patrolman to take care of the defendant until he was able to go to his home.

Miss Mellon is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Mellon. Ross is the son of the late Rev. and Mrs. George Ross of St. John.

Both Keith Bills Held Over

Both Keith houses, the Memorial and the Boston, will hold over their current hit shows for another week at least.

"Folie Parisienne," the daring revue at the Boston, has broken all house records for attendance and gross receipts thus far in its run, Divisional Manager Charles W. Koerner announces.

This is the revue which played a full season at the French Casino in New York. Although it is long on beauty and girls, there is no shortage of comedy and novelty.

And the headliners are the Four Kraddocks, Red Dust, Gine, De Quincy and Lewis, George Campo and Elsie Roy, Rosalean and Saville, Freda, Georges Bruay, Andre Randall and Meta Carlyle.

As generally happens with a Fred Astaire-Ginger Rogers picture, business at Keith's Memorial has been of such proportions that this picture merits an extension of the engagement. The new Astaire-Rogers film, "Swing Time," is the sixth in the series of musicals co-starring the famous dancer and the personable blonde.

Jerome Kern's grand score is a feature of "Swing Time," and the libretto is highly entertaining. A happy combination has resulted from the coupling of Victor Moore and Helen Broderick as the comedy element.

Mr. Moore's engaging talent is shown at its best in "Swing Time."

TIP ON WOBURN COURT ESCAPE WINS $25

By THE NEWS TIP EDITOR

Calmly and unhurriedly walking out of a Woburn courtroom as if he were a spectator rather than one awaiting trial, John "Moustache" Sullivan escaped while more than handful of guards and police were close by.

Immediately realizing the news value of this spectacular escape, a radio operator called the Boston Evening American which was first "on the street" with the story.

To this man the News Tip Editor awarded the first prize of $25 in the Boston Evening American-Sunday Advertiser News Tip Contest.

2ND PRIZE DIVIDED

Second prize of $10 was divided between two contestants this week.

A Cambridge man receives $5 for information on an automobile accident costing two lives.

The second half of the prize goes to a resident of Calais, Me., who telephoned his office the news that the British woman aviatrix had been sighted over Newfoundland in her flight across the ocean.

For tips on three auto accidents, a Billerica woman was awarded the third prize of five dollars.

TEN WIN $1 AWARDS

The $1 awards were forwarded to the following 10 persons:

A Cambridge salesman who reported a fatal auto crash; an East Boston student who gave informatiin concerning a motor mishap; a Brighton housewife who aided the American concerning a police story; a Boston salesman for his report of an accident; a Lynn man for his tip on a fire; a Dorchester civil engineer who reported a suicide; a Waltham citizen who phoned information relative to an accident; a Medford clerk for his report of a blast; a hospital attendant for his tip on the death of a prominent man, and a Quincy woman who reported an accident.

Each week $50 is awarded for news tips. Just remember to call LIBERTY 4000 when you SEE or HEAR of NEWS. We do the rest.

that's why she smokes a TAREYTON Cork tip —It is no Blotter

● Her lips are always soft and pretty. Never dry or coarse. And her lipstick is never "messed up". For she's a careful smoker. She knows that cigarette paper acts like a blotter. And so she always chooses Tareyton. A Tareyton cork tip resists moisture. It doesn't stick to your lips—doesn't absorb lipstick—doesn't dry out your lips. Moreover, it prevents loose ends, never gets soggy and doesn't taste papery. Try Tareyton. There's something about them you'll like. The Tareyton cork tip adds the dainty finishing touch to Tareyton's finer milder tobaccos—quality that ordinary cigarettes cannot afford.

Scarcity of Leading Men in Hollywood

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service

Copyright, 1936, Universal Service

Los Angeles, Sept. 9 (US)—Within the last year Carole Lombard's stock has gone sky high, with the result that when her contract with Paramount expires December 28 there will have to be a little do-re-mi offered her if she is to remain with Para.

Louella O. Parsons

Carole is the fair-haired child of the moment and everything is being done to make her happy. William LeBaron would like to have her star in the Norman Krasna story, "You and Me," but he won't insist unless he can find a leading man who will please Carole and himself.

At the moment tests are being made and if a leading man is found Carole will start work immediately and finishing in time to get into "Morning, Noon and Night," October 15. What a scarcity of leading men in this town!

The book I've enjoyed most in many a month is "Gone With The Wind." No wonder Margaret Mitchell's novel has sold 400,000 copies in the past three months! The story is not only fascinating but instructive because of its excellent account of the reconstruction period following the Civil War. David Selznick, who will make the movie, always plans to make it on a big scale with George Cukor directing. Now what about "Scarlett O'Hara," the heroine? I can see Miriam Hopkins or Margaret Sullavan in the part. But I can see no one but Clark Gable for "Rhett Butler." What are we going to do about it?

Deanna Durbin is probably the smartest of "Three Smart Girls," which, of course, is the moniker of a Universal movie. Deanna is the 13-year-old child who panicked all Hollywood. First at Universal's big party, then at Johannes Poulsen's dinner. The young lyric soprano was what Gregory Ratoff would call "Sensational." So—in the entire story of "Three Smart Girls" has been revamped to give little Miss Durbin a bigger and better part in a bigger and better picture. The new cast includes Alice Brady, Charles Winninger, Louis Hayward, John King, Mischa Auer, Ernest Cossart and Hobart Cavanaugh with Henry Koster directing for Charles Rogers.

I hate to be cynical, but there's something fishy about the comaraderie of the gals on Director E. H. Griffith's "Ladies in Love" set. Connie Bennett watching the rushes says: "Well, now I can relax—Loretta steals the picture!" Loretta Young rushes to Constance and giving a big kiss exclaims: "Constance, you're really too wonderful—it's your picture!" Simone Simon is congratulating Janet Gaynor and Janet insists Simone steals the picture! It's all too good to be true.

CHATTER IN HOLLYWOOD: Only now is there a solution to "The Mystery of Luise Rainer." Luise was in seclusion following her recent trip to New York and no one knew just what had happened. It seems the star was taken very ill aboard the returning plane, and some gallant traveler gave up his seat that a bed might be made for her. Now that Luise has recuperated from what was really a severe illness she'd like to learn the identity of her fellow passenger so that she may thank him for his courtesy.

Frieda Inescort, planing into town from a New York interlude, will find herself in particular demand at the Warner studios. First of all Hal Wallis has assigned the talented trouper the role of Josephine Hutchinson's pal in "Mountain Justice," the hill-billy saga for which Director Mike Curtiz is now making background shots in the Deep South. With this one completed, Inescourt reports to Director William Dieterle to be Errol Flynn's sister who is in love with Ian Hunter in "Another Dawn." Nice work if you can get it, we always say.

It seems as though my good friend Gene Raymond is succumbing to the musical influence in his life. Anyhow, the popular and busy Mr. Raymond has come out from under cover with a full-fledged operetta, which he has written all by himself. No title yet, but RKO has reached the dickering stage. That studio has already purchased one of Gene's compositions called "Will You," which he sings in "Million Dollar Profile," now called "The Smartest Girl in Town."

Snapshots of Hollywood

LORETTA YOUNG off for Honolulu alone thus killing the rumors she and EDDIE SUTHERLAND would make this their honeymoon. November, we hear unofficially, is the real date. CHARLIE CHAPLIN decorating PAULETTE GODDARD with diamonds and diamonds — all in bracelets. He is also writing a new story for her since the first two didn't jell. MRS. OTTO PREMINGER receiving one of [illegible] four day diet schedules from Hungary. EDWARD STEVENSON doing the LILY PONS gowns in place of BERNARD NEWMAN who sailed to Europe! DOROTHY POYNTON HILL, Olympic swimming champ, has a movie gleam in her eye and has authorized LEO MORRISON to negotiate a contract for her. CLAUDETTE COLBERT and her DR. PRESSMAN entertaining JR. AND MRS. EDWARD FALK. The SONJA HENIE-TYRONE POWER romance is at the sizzling stage. MRS. FRED MACMURRAY out of the hospital spending a few days with FRED at Santa Barbara. DOLORES DEL RIO recuperating from her recent serious illness taking a big reception on the Columbia lot. LILY PONS celebrating completion [illegible] with her first visit to Chinatown and, she says, her first Chinese meal. The CHAS. CARPENTERS visiting in-laws of NEDDA HARRIGAN and WALTER CONNOLLY. MRS. C. dividing her time between her guests and the Warner Bros. lot where she is playing MRS. PATRICK HENRY. That's all for today.

MUSIC RULES AT MET

"Stage Struck" an elaborate musical from the atelier of Warner Bros., will hold the screen of the Metropolitan Theater Friday. An in-person revue, with John Steel heading the cast and entitled "Stars Over Broadway," will be the stage attraction.

In the newest Warner musical, Dick Powell, Joan Blondell, Warren William, Frank McHugh, the Yacht Club Boys and Carol Hughes are cast in the most important roles.

Busby Berkley, once of Boston, has staged the dances in his best style. The story has been evolved from an original by Robert Lord, also an ex-Bostonian, and Harburg and Allen wrote the songs.

'Gorgeous Hussy' at Loew's

An important premiere for Friday is that of "The Gorgeous Hussy" at Loew's State and Orpheum theaters. Joan Crawford and Robert Taylor are starred, and Franchot Tone and Lionel Barrymore are in prominent assignments.

Miss Crawford plays the part of Peggy Eaton, the madcap young lady whose adventures were the talk of the Capital in President Jackson's time. Clarence Brown directed.

At the Olympia

Lionel Barrymore and Maureen O'Sullivan are starred in "Devil Doll," current at the Washington Street Olympia. "We Went to College," with Charles Butterworth (who did), Una Merkel, Hugh Herbert and Walter Abel are on the same bill.

CHAPTER EIGHT

"And when you get to the hill and start up, it doesn't seem half as steep. Most problems are like that, Linda."

"Thanks, for practically no help at all. Do you think that I can say to myself, 'Nonsense, it's nothing, forget it' and go on and on, as usual?"

"Not quite, this is very real, and also very old."

"Which doesn't help me in the least, my dear Tubbs. Why is life so cruel, why?"

"Why should you expect me to know more than any other mortal, my dear?"

"His wife wants an heir, should have one, and she cannot. That is cruel enough. Now I have been what you doubtless secretly rate as a fool—I don't want one now."

"Rather an unhappy problem all around. Lord Edward Farrington would give his right arm—both arms—to have a grandson."

"A real one, you mean," Linda said, with bitterness that hurt Tubbs.

"At least, Linda, dear, the thought shouldn't hurt you."

"I'm not hurt, not the way you think. I don't think I am even ashamed. Can't you understand. I love Robert! I still love him. I shall doubtless always love him!"

The door opened above stairs.

"You may bring Mr. Barrow up for tea, Linda," her aunt called.

Tubbs made a wry face and shook his head.

"Thanks, auntie, we are going out for a walk," Linda called back. To Tubbs she said, "We can both think clearer if we go out and walk."

He shoved the unpacked case of books in a corner and they started out together.

"By the way, may I ask if Robert knows?" Tubbs asked after they had walked in silence a few minutes.

"Naturally not!"

"But you will tell him, naturally."

"I am not so sure."

Tubbs' Plea

"What? Oh, come now, Linda, that's all nonsense."

"I am not blaming Robert. Why should I make dear Robert miserable?"

"Well, Linda, after all, one has to use a little reason. There is a certain—er—responsibility, you know."

"I hope you don't think I am going to whimper. I loved Robert—that was enough."

They walked along in silence again for several minutes.

"Have you met Robert—I mean down at the lake cottage, since—since you came back."

Linda stopped and stared at him.

"You know? Have you been watching? You couldn't snoop, it isn't in you, Tubbs!" Linda exclaimed.

"Not a snoop."

He told her about his walk and seeing her hat and gloves in Robert's car on the forest road.

"I started to give you a brotherly talk, at one time, but gave it up."

"It would have made no difference, Tubbs."

"I have an idea."

"For another novel—using me as the ——"

"Not at all! As if I would, Linda. No, this is an idea about solving this situation."

"Ideas aren't much help," Linda said, rather hopelessly.

"This may turn out to be brilliant."

"What is it, Tubbs, dear?" Linda spoke hopefully.

"Can't tell you quite yet."

She stopped and put her hands on his shoulders.

"Tubbsy, old darling," she said with a little catch in her voice, "this had better be a brilliant idea or—or I don't know what will become of me!"

"Hush, old dear—I am thinking! Linda—I believe I have it—I believe everything will be all right, in every way!"

"Behold—Napoleon—planning a battle!"

Linda looked at him, but refused to smile at his buffoonery.

"The battle of Waterloo, undoubtedly," she said.

"A Waterloo to your troubles, my dear."

They turned and walked back to the cottage. Tubbs was too full of his plan to accept her invitation to go in.

"Keep your head, smile, and don't permit the crochety old aunt to worry you. Above all, keep your secret to yourself."

"Do you expect me to shout it from the housetops?"

"Rather not, my dear."

Linda stood on tiptoe and kissed him.

"Tubbs, you are priceless—you have given me courage."

"Right. I shall see you tomorrow, or the day after. This idea of mine just sprung from my head, full-panoplied, like Minerva from the head of Jove."

"Father would have liked that phrase, Tubbs."

"He doubtless did—it isn't mine, it came from Caesar or Ovid, or some of those tiresome old Roman highbrows."

He patted her hand and watched her enter the cottage. She turned and smiled at him before she closed the door.

"Tubbs" Barrow's smile faded the moment Linda disappeared. His plan, he felt, was rather daring. He had to go through with it, however. The first part would be the worst.

Robert would be riding early in the morning. He usually rode along the [illegible] bridle path. Tubbs planned to see him there. He rode occasionally, and rode rather well for a shortish and plump individual. Tubbs did not have to wait until morning. Robert almost bumped into him as he popped out of the tobacconists.

"Ho there, Tubbs, whither away?" Robert cried.

"Drifting—like thistledown, Robert."

Robert laughed and slapped Tubbs' stocky shoulder.

"Rather heavy this thistledown. Hop in and come up to the castle for a nip—perhaps we can get up a game, if Rosamond is equal to it."

Tubbs got into the sport car beside Robert. When they reached the lower terrace on the hill, below the castle, Tubbs said:

"Hold up—I want to get this view."

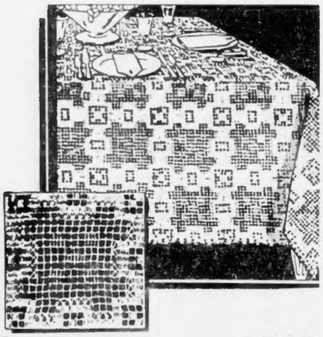
Handsome Lace Cloth



FILET CROCHET PATTERN 762

IT'S RICH-LOOKING, yes, but it's also easy to make—this handsome lace cloth which, once seen, you're sure to want.

A bit of string—your crochet hook—and in a little time you've enough simple squares crocheted to join for a scarf, tea cloth, bedspread or dinner-size cloth.

The square is so easy, it's quickly learned by heart. Pattern 762 contains directions for making the square shown and joining it to form a variety of accessories; illustrations of the square and of all stitches needed; material requirements.

Send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) for this pattern to Boston Evening American, Needlecraft Dept., 82 Eighth avenue, New York, N. Y. Write plainly pattern number, your name and address.

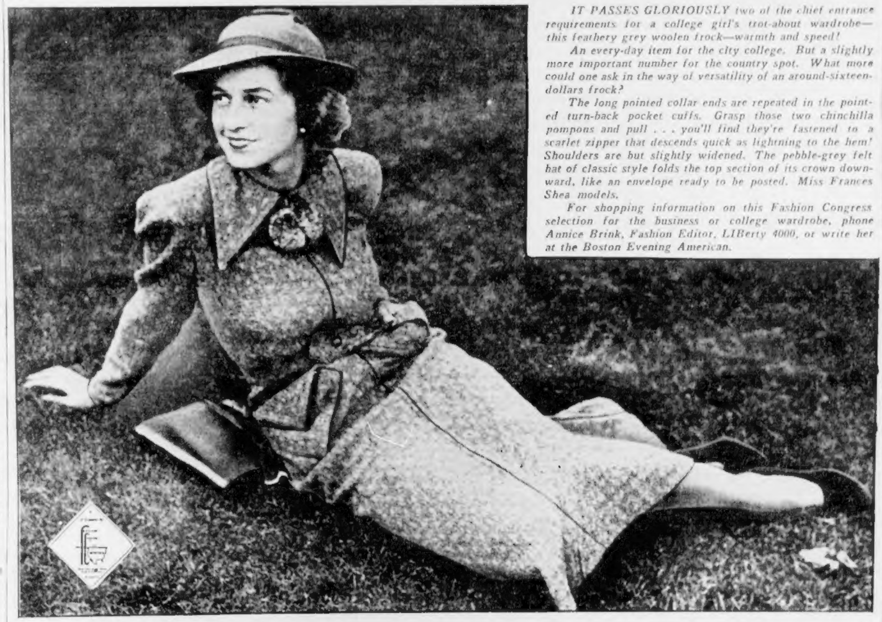
Feather-Soft Wool With Zipper Garners Votes



IT PASSES GLORIOUSLY two of the chief entrance requirements for a college girl's trot-about wardrobe—this feathery grey woolen frock—warmth and speed!

An every-day item for the city college. But a slightly more important number for the country spot. What more could one ask in the way of versatility of an around-sixteen-dollars frock?

The long pointed collar ends are repeated in the pointed turn-back pocket cuffs. Grasp those two chinchilla pompons and pull . . . you'll find they're fastened to a scarlet zipper that descends quick as lightning to the hem! Shoulders are but slightly widened. The pebble-grey felt hat of classic style folds the top section of its crown downward, like an envelope ready to be posted. Miss Frances Shea models.

Choosing a Defense

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

On many hands the defenders are called upon to make the closest sort of decision between two alternate lines of play.

Rarely, however, does the correct decision depend upon a sheer guess—there is almost always a sound reason for choosing one over the other.

It is simply a matter of delving deep enough to find the reason.

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
1 ◇	Pass	2 ♣	Pass
2 ◇	Pass	2 N T	Pass
3 N T

East did not like to bid two no-trump with a singleton of his partner's suit, but there was no other good bid open to him, and he certainly had too much to pass.

South opened his fourth highest spade, dummy played low, and North's Queen was taken by the Ace. A low club was led to the King, and the club return finessed, South's Queen winning.

South now laid down the heart King, and, when his partner signalled the nine, did some serious figuring.

Two alternate lines of defense suggested themselves: One was to play North for five hearts to the Ace, which would mean that the suit could be run off solidly by following up with the Queen and a low heart. Moreover, if East's club suit had been six long originally, this defense would be necessary, but if East, as seemed more probable from the bidding, held the Jack of hearts four times he would be able to stop or block the running of the heart suit.

DECLARER HELPLESS

The diamond suit also was a menace in that it appeared very likely that South would be squeezed on long clubs unless his partner had a diamond stopper, but, again judged by the bidding, this latter appeared likely, since East must be very short in diamonds.

South decided that his best chance was to play for only three heart tricks and one spade which, in addition to the club already won, would save a game. Therefore, after laying down the King of hearts, he led a low heart. North won with the Ace and obediently returned a spade. South's nine knocked out the King.

With this defense, the declarer was helpless. He ran off his three remaining clubs and two top diamonds, but South held on to the Queen of Hearts and the Jack of spades for grim death, giving up his diamond stopper to do so.

Married Comrades

By Adele Garrison

CHAPTER 94

MY FATHER'S voice, so filled with the tender devotion which has never failed me, made it impossible for the moment for me to answer his assurance that whatever I wished done for myself or Mary, I should have, "even unto the half of his kingdom."

But I reminded myself that I was a soldier's daughter, and that no matter how my heart was torn by this coming separation which might well be an eternal one, I must not let his memory of me be that of a broken and weeping woman.

So by sheer force of will, I banished the lump from my throat and the tremor from my voice, and answered him steadily.

"Thank you, Father," I said. "I know that always. I am afraid I sometimes presume upon the knowledge."

"Never, never, my darling child!" he protested fondly, almost upsetting me again, but I forced myself to go on quickly.

"You are planning to have a man come up there to guard the children?" I asked.

"Yes, one of my most trusted men, Frank Williams."

"Have you planned to have him accompany us on the journey?" I went on.

He hesitated only the fraction of a second.

MADGE PROTESTS

"If I can get him here on time," he said. "You see the plan for going to New Hampshire is so recent. I've only had time to think of preparations, and they are not yet perfected. But there will be a guard for you on the journey, never fear, even if Williams does not get here."

I saw in an instant what he meant, and I protested passionately.

"You mean to transfer to us one of the men detailed to guard you on this journey! Never! Father! Never! I did not ask because I feared anything on the journey. It was simply that I want to take Scott with us. He will be the best possible protection for the children, as well as an ideal comrade and playfellow, and if the guard were to come with us in an extra car, the problem of the dog's transportation would be solved.

"That was the only reason I asked you about the guard. You must not dream of giving us one of your own! I shall stay right here, and not stir a step until this Mr. Williams arrives."

DICKY HELPS OUT

My father looked at me, and there was that in his grave expression which, despite its tender comprehension of my emotion, made me feel, in the old wives' parlance, "knee high to a grasshopper." I conquered the impulse to turn mutely toward Dicky for aid, but he must have caught my subconscious appeal for aid, for he said briskly:

"Suppose you let me have a try at this Gordian knot. When are you starting, Madge?"

"Just before daybreak. We want to be well on the road by sunrise, for we do not want to risk the chance of that awful man watching the place and seeing that we are leaving."

"You flatter the capering cockroach," my husband retorted. "'Vermin', not 'man' is his species. But you are right in your estimate of his habits. He'll go to bed before daybreak, but only just before. Dad, has this man Williams a car?"

"No, that's the trouble," my father said. "If he had, he could get here before Margaret starts. But it's too late now for him to catch a train out here from New York. He lives over in Newark."

MEET HIS TRAIN

"But not too late for him to get a train to—Patchogue. I can meet him there and get him out here in time for him to go up. But what about a car? Katherine and Madge are taking the big car and Katherine's runabout. Of course, he can take mine, but it leaves us here without a car. However—"

"I'm leaving mine here, you know," my father reminded him.

"That seems to me a splendid scheme, Richard. I'll get in touch with Williams at once, and explain everything — in code, of course—so that no one can understand what we are saying. When shall I tell him to meet you?"

SUGGESTS POLICE GUARD

"The last train from New York. I'll look it up later. That will give me time to get you off. Tell Williams to wait for me there, if I'm late. And — don't you think, sir, it might be as well to ask the state police to have a man scout around here from the time you go until I get back?"

"Your own guards will be ample protection until then, but after that, there'll be no man save Jim here. There's no real danger, but I should not care to have either Mary or Madge annoyed by having to talk to Jack Leslie, even at the end of a ten-foot pole."

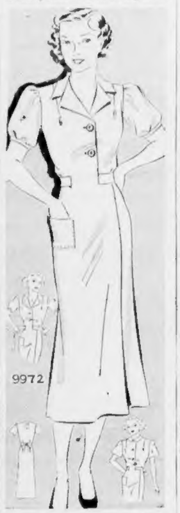
CHIC HOUSE FROCK

MARIAN MARTIN PATTERN 9972

When a busy housemaker finds a pretty wrap-around as simple to sew as this gay frock, she'll make several of them in different colors to brighten up her morning chores.

Pattern 9972 is made of a minimum of easy pieces. Cut it out . . . sew it up . . . add the adjustable belt which ties into a perky little bow at the back . . . puff or flare the comfy sleeves, stitch on the handy pocket, smooth out the notched revers . . . and in less time than it takes to tell, you'll have one of the daintiest house frocks you've seen in a long time!



Pattern 9972 may be ordered only in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44. Size 16 requires 3⅝ yards 36-inch fabric.

Send 15 cents in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for each Marian Martin pattern. Be sure to write plainly your name, address and style number.

Good Manners

By FRIEND C.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1—My sister has been going with a young man for about two years. With this in mind, do you think it is proper that he should give her mother some little gift on her birthday?

2—Should his girl friend give his mother some little gift on Mother's Day?

3—Should the young man have any right to go into the young lady's home and with her family at home, dash up the stairs to her bedroom, without question, or without waiting for her to come down?

4—Should the girl, when giving a party for him, have only his friends, and shun her own family (Her family consists of her mother, father, two brothers and herself). READER.

1—Yes, I think that it would be a very pleasant and generous thing for this young man to give the girl's mother a "little gift" on her birthday. And it would be entirely proper, if he chooses the gift with taste and judgment. A box of flowers is, of course, a perfect gift for this occasion. A box of candy, some sheer white linen handkerchiefs, monogrammed if possible; a good-looking purse, a subscription to a magazine. These would all be appropriate gifts for him to choose.

2—Yes . . . and the choice of gifts would be the same.

3—No, sir, most emphatically no. The family should do something drastic about this cyclonic young man!

4—If the girl is giving the party at her own home, as I judge is the case, the members of her family should be invited to the party. Her family is her social background, and the girl who disregards this social background when she entertains in her own home, is a very unwise girl. I don't see how she can respect herself. Her family couldn't respect her for omitting them. And certainly any right-thinking young man would scorn such tactics.

Martha Lee

Box Lunches For School

FROM MARTHA LEE'S WEDNESDAY MORNING BROADCAST OVER STATION WMEX

SHINED SHOES—bookstraps—pencil boxes—home work—"ear-and-neck-inspection"—lunches! These words spell schooldays' return to mothers all over the country—and not the least of these is lunches!

Although some schools maintain cafeterias, others serve milk or soup, and some are close enough so that the young ones may come home at noon, the large number of children must carry lunches. That's where these tips come in.

Select a lunch box that can be kept clean—scalded and aired daily. All foods not in containers should be wrapped separately in waxed paper before being put in the box. Put heavy things on the bottom, but try to place them in the order in which they will be eaten. Clean pill boxes with holes punched in the top make salt and sugar shakers. Save screw top jars for puddings, or tie waxed paper over custard cups for containers. Provide a vacuum bottle if possible.

In planning the school lunch, remember that it should be chosen with regard to the whole day's food requirements. Milk should be included in the lunch every day, and a hot dish if possible. Fruit may well be a part of every lunch box, and in this connection don't forget dates—one of the most valuable fruits for school days. The sugar in dates is of the invert variety and thus while they satisfy that sweets-craving and act as a dessert, fruit and candy all in one, they are healthful and digestible. There are vitamins, iron, calcium and other minerals in dates.

BROWN BREAD SANDWICHES

½ teaspoon cinnamon
24 slices Boston brown bread
2 tablespoons orange juice
¼ cup butter
½ package dates

Chop the dates finely in a food chopper or wooden bowl. Add cinnamon and orange juice to form a paste. Spread the mixture on thin, buttered Boston brown bread and cut in halves. 24 sandwiches.

BANANA CUSTARD

4 eggs
⅛ teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons sugar
1¾ cups milk
½ teaspoon vanilla
2 bananas

Beat eggs slightly, add the salt and sugar. Scald milk in double boiler and stir into egg mixture. Return to double boiler and cook slowly, stirring constantly until mixture coats spoon. (Water should be just under boiling point to prevent over-cooking or curdling.) Cool and add vanilla. Quarter bananas lengthwise, and slice half a banana into each dish. (Use individual custard cups or paper baking cups for the school box.) Pour custard over bananas and chill. Serves 4.

WHOLE WHEAT COOKIES

1 cup white flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon soda
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup whole wheat flour
½ cup shortening
½ package dates
1 cup brown sugar
1 egg
1-3 cup sour milk
1 teaspoon vanilla

Sift white flour, baking powder, soda and salt together. Add whole wheat flour. Mix dates through dry ingredients with finger tips. Cream shortening, add sugar gradually, then beaten egg. Add dry ingredients alternately with milk. Add vanilla and beat until well mixed. Drop by teaspoonfuls 2 inches apart on well-oiled baking sheet or inverted pan. Bake in fairly hot oven (400 deg. F.) 10 minutes. 36 cookies.

Important Cosmetic Needs Of the Undergraduate as Result of Survey

By ARLINE GOULD

COLLEGE GIRLS—please note! We've been rushing around diligently the last couple of days to help solve your cosmetic problem. Because we know that you will want to be beautiful as well as intellectual during your academic career.

A cosmetic survey made recently among college girls in a wide geographical area showed that undergraduates these days have simple but very definite cosmetic needs.

Make-up requirements were listed this way, in order of importance: Powder, lipstick, rouge, mascara, eye shadow. Other cosmetic "musts" a[illegible]: Good cleansing cream, mild skin tonic, a facial masque; hair, body and hand brushes and a swell perfume.

You probably have your own pet powder, but if you aren't too "bigoted" to try something new there's a grand [illegible] y and a grand idea [illegible] a powder palette, which consists of four boxes of super quality powder in four different shades for a surprisingly low cost.

You can see for yourself the possibilities in combinations of these four luscious shades particularly if you're struggling with a fading tan.

As for cold cream—there's a particularly swell sale going on, which makes it possible for you to buy a large jar of a famous beautician's cream for just half price. It will last for ages and you'll love the consistency, the lovely fragrance and the efficiency of this cleansing cream.

A new and most elegant masque "frappe" is just the thing you need to transport yourself from the academic to the glamorous in a quick afternoon treatment in your room. To give your skin a radiant glow for an important date.

Its bleaching properties will whisk away the sallowness of a tan hangover and its tingly but cool sensation will freshen your skin, erase blemishes and make you feel equal to cope with even a handsome football captain.

As for perfume we've discovered one that by actual test has a definite, almost uncanny appeal to men! Its fatal male appeal is something which may prove as important to you as passing mid-years successfully.

There's a gentle, subtle freshness that makes it romantic without being cloyingly sweet. It's a perfect all-occasion perfume, correct for daytime and evening wear. Use it cleverly and men, the dopes, will think it's wonderful you they smell and they'll decide you have a mystical fascination they never before realized.

For shopping information on these cosmetics write Arline Gould, Boston Evening American, enclosing a stamped addressed envelope. Or telephone her at Liberty 4000.

says Mrs. George Young, 19 Winnemay Street, Natick

"I TRAINED at Pratt Institute . . . know cooking inside out, but never until we got our electric range did I realize the fun and freedom of meal-getting. Also, it's the 'tastiest' cooking I know . . . the most dependable. It's neat as wax. And, the cost—that's interesting. Since moving to 19 Winnemay, there is one more in the family, it's a larger house, we added an electric range, and my bills are less than with my old cooking methods." I'll gladly explain this in detail to anybody who is interested."

"Recommending for the fourth time the public works consolidation as a first step in simplifying Boston's confusing administrative machinery, the Research Bureau states, councilors may well be working against the best interests of the employes they believe they are defending. GILMORE DOBIE'S OLDEST ACQUAINTANCES are baffled. This, normally, is the period of the football season when the Boston College sage puckers his face in a melancholy pug and turns on his autumnal weeps. But Gil is [illegible]. There are reasons. The B. C. students like him—approved of him from the instant that he busted his clavicle in spring practice and stayed teaching with his arm in a napkin. The alumni have endorsed him. The player material, though perhaps lacking some of that stevedore type of strength which a career coach prefers, is adequate, agile and apt. And the schedule has just enough featherbed spots mixed among the brickbottom games.

[illegible] season's record against the Cards is 13 victories against seven defeats, and right there you have one of the principal reasons why [illegible] City entry trails the [illegible] by five full games today.

Yet the hard-hearted Mr. McKechnie wasn't even thinking of ceasing this slaughter of the top-[illegible]

On the contrary, he going out of his way to inflict further painful [illegible] on the Cards by [illegible] the very two [illegible] who [illegible] in the [illegible] win against the [illegible] two of the Bees' [illegible] on the last visit to St. Louis.

It will be "Deacon Danny" MacFayden, the circuit's 1936 comeback king, this p. m., and Jim "Tiny" Chaplin tomorrow.

MacFayden, already owning more victories than he gained the past three seasons, will be seeking his 16th win.

If he succeeds he will have [illegible] his previous high victory [illegible] set as a Red Sox in 1931 and [illegible] have four or five chances left to better the record that resulted [illegible] Yanks paying $50,000 for him [illegible]

He points out that the Giants were further in front on this date in 1935 and the Cards caught them. He contends this can and probably will happen again.

With him went the Cards' pennant hopes.

Lawson Little Writes

Grip Important to Golfers

By LAWSON LITTLE

(Only holder of the American and British Amateur championships two years running)

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 9—In a preceding article, I made an attempt to explain the proper grip. A short summary might be appropriate before explaining the use of the hands.

The left hand is placed on the club handle so that the "V" formed between the thumb and index finger points over the [illegible] shoulder. The club lies in the [illegible] not entirely in the palm [illegible] three fingers of [illegible] The thumb of the left hand [illegible] against the shaft [illegible] right of the top of the shaft.

Now for the right hand. It should be placed upon the club so that if it were opened the palm would be facing squarely in the direction of play. The [illegible] of the right hand should fit squarely over the thumb of the left hand.

Hands Guide

With a proper grip now established, we can go unto function or duty of each hand. As the hands are the only contact the player has with the club, all of the movements that have any bearing upon the movement of the club must be transmitted through the hands. It is with the hands that the club head is controlled.

By this, I mean that an error may be made during the process of the swing, but the shot can still be successful if the hands respond quickly enough to counteract the error. Then on the other hand, if the swing is perfect and the hands fail to function properly, a poor shot will be the result.

It is interesting to note that the function of the left hand is vastly different from that of the right and yet both hands must work together and in unison. This may sound a little contradictory, but when [illegible] the hands are [illegible] while the [illegible] hand [illegible] forward [illegible] the wrist of the left hand bends back one can see that each hand moves oppositely to the other and yet swing the club on the same path.

Eagles Face Health Tests

The entire Boston College football squad of about 70 candidates will be submitted to a searching physical examination by Dr. Ben [illegible], team physician at University Heights this afternoon before [illegible] Dobie sends his lads through the arduous scrimmage sessions which he has slated for the next [illegible] days.

Although Dobie has completely dispensed with the customary [illegible] drills and conditioning work which used to play such a prominent part in B. C.'s early season grid training, the whole Eagle squad appears to be in excellent shape for the stiff work ahead of [illegible].

Dobie believes that the best way [illegible] to have him play [illegible] and brands as the usual [illegible] a waste of time. The Dobie method, and the one which he is now employing at University Heights with great success is to start right in teaching the boys plays and drilling them with mild contact work gradually increasing in its violence as the lads harden up and are better able to take it.

LONGDEN Trailing CHOJNACKI

By The Associated Press

With Cavalcade slated to return to competition today in a tune-up affair at Narragansett Park, the [illegible] Narragansett Special at the Rhode Island track next Wednesday should prove to be a real horse race. Also pointing for the rich [illegible] are Time Supply, the 1935 [illegible] Discovery, Action, winner [illegible] out of nine starts, and [illegible]. Action and [illegible], two in the Aqueduct handicap [illegible] week to give their final [illegible] the Edgemere of a mile and an eighth at Aqueduct Saturday.

Frank Chojnacki, 19-year-old Chicago jockey, is winging away out in front in the battle for 1936 jockey honors. The Western rider has booted home 108 winners out of [illegible] mounts. He has placed 171 times and landed in the third hole 136 for a percentage of .17. Johnny Longden, Canadian jockey, is in second place with 165 while Basil James of Sunnyside, Wash., has scored 146 times.

Claims Brundage Seeks Protection

Houston, Tex., Sept. 9 (AP)—Jack Rafferty, vice president of the A. A. U. and outspoken critic of the management of American Olympic teams, moved today to curb what he said was an attempt to transfer the 1936 convention from Houston to Chicago.

He accused Avery Brundage, National A. A. U. president, of [illegible]

FLOYD [illegible]

[illegible]

Floyd Gibbons will pay good money for good TRUE adventure stories. Hundreds of people in Boston and nearby towns have received ten dollar and hundred dollar bills for their yarns, and there's no reason why you can't do the same, for, as Floyd says, everybody has had at least one adventure. Fred A. Carlson of 57 Deaconess road, Boston, won one hundred and ten dollars for the story of his life's biggest moment, and you can do the same. For further details, see the box at the right side of the page.

Termite Taxes Dangerous

[illegible]

"Termites," he explains, in October Cosmopolitan, "are tiny insects which eat away at the vitals of wooden pillars and other supports without revealing on the surface that they have been working. They get you but you can't see them. Unless detected in time they can cause a building to collapse. Most taxes used to be levied direct so we knew we were paying them but now indirect taxes have come into vogue, the purpose being to fool the taxpayer concerning the amount extracted from his pocket.

Compilation shows that as recently as 1929 and 1930 these indirect termite taxes supplied only [illegible] per cent of the Federal revenue. But the present regime in its first year, resorted to collection of [illegible] per cent of its revenue by this disguised method.

"The truth is you cannot eat, you cannot sleep, you cannot dress, sit down on a chair or sofa, buy anything to eat or anything to wear, travel, take a bath, provide anything for your children, visit a movie or a theater, protect your family with an insurance policy, in short you cannot move without being taxed, taxed, taxed.

It makes little difference whether taxes are levied insidiously on you or camouflaged. Manufacturers and other producers don't absorb taxes or pay them out of their own pockets. They couldn't. If they attempted to do so they would go bankrupt and all their employes would be idle. Of necessity they must pass on tax levies to purchaser by charging higher prices."

M. S. RUKEYSER SAYS:

Business Needs TO BETTER STANDING With the Public

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER
Copyright, 1936, by Universal Service

New York, Sept 9 — Unquestionably, a fundamental national need is for business consciously to undertake to improve its reputation with the public. Such a campaign must be predicated on good works, rather than ballyhoo.

[illegible] writes: "Why not suggest to these large corporations to offer their stock on the installment plan?

Say not more than five shares at a time and at a given price. Then the company could do this. Have a long cardboard printed with several lines for the notation of payments to be made upon it and this card must be mailed with each remittance. When they return the card with the credit marked on it let them send an addressed envelope along with it for the return of the card the next time. This will facilitate the mailing of the card and act as a reminder to mail it on.

You know no broker is anxious to handle small transactions of five shares. You know big businesses are built on small profit and by many consumer stockholders.

Make it simple for the little fellow with the most dough in the aggregate and the plan will work."

GOVERNMENTS

N. E. MILLS

Outlook FOR COTTON Is Good

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW

The surprising reduction in the government's cotton crop estimate is going to cause a boomlet for New England mills that will definitely increase the tempo of recovery in this section.

When the news of a short crop was made known trading in the cloth markets was practically suspended as mill agents and commission houses withdrew goods from sale.

While it is admittedly too early to get a genuine picture of the cotton cloth market a price rise seems inevitable. At the same time authoritative observers say there is an active demand for later deliveries as well as nearby. This combination should certainly result in a literal scramble for goods if buyers need cloth as badly as many believe.

For the last month various and varied comments that pretend to tell how the market will behave after Labor Day have come to our attention. Almost all of them are based on what happened in other years. We call this calendar forecasting and consider it harmless and meaningless while admitting that at times it is more than irritating. If they were right every month of the year we would still feel the same way. This writer urgently suggests that readers take the market for what it is now. Not what it was a year or two years ago. If stock prices are going up from here on the story will be written on the stock tape and not in some history book.

Notebook: There are others who feel the same way about calendar forecasting . . . One of the more respected financial observers in Wall Street neatly disposes of the whole matter by saying in brief that in the last 70 years traders who owned stocks at Labor Day had good profits before election . . . The only condition being that a bull market be under way . . . That covers the problem, if any existed . . . And does away with guessing regarding what happens in the market in election years . . . Since it is pretty obvious the market held to its long term course without regard to elections.

Stock prices have turned in a fair performance so far this week. Their willingness to lift on the least show of buying enthusiasm definitely suggests the line of least resistance is upward. We expect the balance of the week will witness markets similar to that of Tuesday. At present we see no reason for allowing any leeway for a reaction. The market has everything in its favor from both a news and a technical viewpoint and should keep going. Hesitation may be seen but even in this respect we believe there is little excuse for prolonged inactivity.

* * *

This and That: Utilities could start to do better in here . . . Individual issues in the group reflect buying interest and the Maine elections are going to be favorable . . . If readers can put up with a political forecast from a financial writer the Republicans will come close to receiving 60 per cent of the total votes cast . . . The electrical equipment group should go right along with the power and light stocks . . . We would favor General Electric, Westinghouse, Cutler Hammer and Allis Chalmers.

STOCK Prices Turn MIXED

ACTIVITY IS MODERATE

New York, Sept. 9 — With profit takers a bit more insistent, the stock market today struggled to keep its balance.

While recent leaders backed up substantially under realizing pressure, a few steel, merchandise and specialty issues managed to edge forward.

The activity near the fourth hour, was about on a par with that of yesterday.

The news from abroad had its cloudy aspects, but the domestic economic picture still maintained its bright appearance.

Grains were mixed, as were bonds. Cotton futures, although ahead moderately, failed to display their strength of Tuesday.

Shares up fractions to a point or so included Otis Steel, Youngstown Sheet & Tube, Republic Steel, Allied Stores, Woolworth, J. C. Penney, American Telephone, Radio, Du Pont, Northern Pacific, Budd Mfg., Kelvinator, Johns-Manville and Corn Products.

Down as much were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, Chrysler, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, Douglas Aircraft, Boeing, Western Union, Anaconda, Kennecott, American Can, Santa Fe, N. Y. Central, Southern Pacific, Pennsylvania, International Nickel, Loew's and Standard Oils of New Jersey and California.

Wall Street exhibited more interest in French fiscal affairs as sterling climbed to a new two-year high in reflection of the flight of capital from the continent. Some selling of stocks was attributed to fears France will be forced to currency devaluation in the near future with a possible temporary unsettlement of international markets.

Timely Topics

Steel stocks continued to hold much of the attention in the boardrooms in view of the roseate production forecasts being made by industrial observers.

In the matter of steel wage increases it was suggested the recent boost of fourth quarter prices may presage a general payroll advance at least by the end of the year. It is thought in some quarters that the larger corporations may be inclined to await assurance that present high mill operations will be sustained before tilting the wage rate.

Another look was taken at merchandising issues on reports that retail sales last week, despite the incidence of the Labor Day holiday, recorded a substantial upturn over the comparable 1935 period.

In connection with the apparently growing consumer demand it was noted Dun & Bradstreet estimated business failures throughout the country in the week ended September 3 totalled 163 against 138 in the previous week and 197 in the same week a year ago.

Sterling at the start of foreign exchange transactions was up ⅛ cent at $5.05⅝, and the French franc was 001-16 of a cent firmer at 6.53 7-16 cents.

ZINC STOCKS Are Lower

Domestic stocks of prime western zinc at the end of August amounted to 37,766 tons, against 58,264 tons in July and 89,790 tons at the close of August, 1935.

August production was 19,912 tons, against 19,828 in previous month and 15,709 in August, 1935. Shipments totaled 20,410 tons, against 21,493 in July and 19,492 in August, 1935, according to American Zinc Institute.

Total stocks in all grades of slab zinc at the close of August totaled 86,194 tons, against 88,665 at the close of July and 112,146 at the end of August, 1935.

HOLD Election FATE

MILLIONS IN CENTRE

By LESLIE GOULD
International News Service Writer

The big question mark in this year's election is what would be classed in any other country as the Centre vote.

It is neither Left nor Right, and it is the vote that will likely decide the election results this November—Roosevelt or Landon.

The Right vote is going to be for Landon. Its minimum strength is the nearly 16 million—15,957,537 to be exact—votes Hoover received in 1932.

The Left vote is going for President Roosevelt and the extreme Left to Lemke. There are no real figures on the size of this vote, but it is probable no less than 16 million minimum of the Right and possibly a little more—thanks to Farleyism and the tricks of this administration.

In between these two groups—the Left and the Right—are something like 7 to 10 million Centre voters. There was just a little less than 7 million votes difference between the Hoover and Roosevelt totals in 1932. The Center has increased some since then.

In 1932, President Roosevelt ran as a conservative liberal. He was for economy in government, a reduction in government employes, sound money, etc. etc. Mr. Hoover was the Right candidate, but he actually was not as conservative as Mr. Roosevelt pretended to be.

There really was no Left. There was a Socialist ticket, but it only polled 728,860 votes.

Mr. Roosevelt polled the Centre vote, the Liberals and the anti-Hooverites. In fact, it was an "against Hoover" vote that put him into office. And this came largely from the Centre.

That was the situation four years ago. Since that time President Roosevelt's true colors have been revealed. Although born and raised in the best traditions of the Extreme Right, he is now a Leftist.

If anyone has any doubts about this they should take his program and speeches and lay them side by side with those of the European radical leaders. Blum—the French Socialist premier — furnishes the best test.

Or if a person does not wish to go to foreign fields, all he has to do is to dig up a copy of the American Socialist Party platform of 1932 and that of Eugene Debs of 1912. The parallels are deadly.

Mr. Roosevelt's record and the written and spoken words of his closest advisers speak for themselves.

* * *

Governor Landon, on the other hand, represents the Right, but it is a liberal right. There are many who will vote for him who wish he were not so liberal. They would prefer Hoover.

He is the logical recipient of the Centre vote. And events in foreign countries point that way.

Earlier developments in Spain, which has now gone to the extreme in this battle between the Lefts and the Rights, are interesting on this score. Spain first had an extreme Right government — a monarchy. This was overthrown, and in the election that followed the Rights polled a small vote, the Centre a large vote and the Left a large vote.

This is what happened here in 1932 — the Centre and Left — although the latter was not so designated or known at that time — united on Roosevelt.

Then came the next Spanish election. The Lefts lost two-thirds of their vote, the bulk of it going to the Centre and what had been the Centre previously swung to the Right. That may be the course that will follow here—the Centre deserting Roosevelt and going for Landon.

* * *

Since then, Spain, through the mishandling of the mine strike in Asturia, brought on its present troubles, with the Centre entirely eliminated and an extreme Right and extreme Left fighting it out. But it is in the earlier developments there that a parallel to events here may be found.

GOOD SUMMER

Showing HAS BEEN Enjoyed

By B. C. FORBES

Securities, trade, industry, commodities have made a satisfactory showing during the traditionally drab weeks preceding Labor Day. Employment has held up, with an upward trend in wages.

Stock quotations gained slightly during August and are within a few points of their five-year peak. The most encouraging feature has been firmness in rail securities, both stocks and bonds.

Various roads which were shaky not so long ago are now earning better than fixed charges. Most managements have proved able to retain as net a gratifying portion of their increased gross.

Distinctly less nervousness has been exhibited over the outlook for the utility industry. Popular clamor against rates has subsided despite the vigorous, not to say vicious, efforts of bureaucrats to win public support for their anti-utility program. Power demands have eclipsed even boom-time heights. And most companies are able to show some gains this year over last year despite numerous reductions in rates and despite multiplying taxes.

Industrial and miscellaneous issues have moved irregularly. Steel stocks latterly have been particularly prominent, having taken up the leadership resigned by motors.

Unquestionably, speculation has been stimulated by prospects of many larger dividend disbursements between now and the end of the year, to avoid the heavy, ridiculous penalties the administration induced Congress to levy on undistributed profits. This stimulation is likely to continue; it probably will become more potent during coming months. This, however, is poor compensation for the new law's lethal defects.

Spectacular advances among staple commodities are far from an unmixed blessing since they foreshadow further rise in living costs.

Wheat today is 25 per cent higher than a year ago, corn is up almost 30 cents a bushel, rye more than 40 cents, while oats are almost 50 per cent dearer. At present, due to the enforced marketing of abnormal supplies because of the drouth, both pork and beef are well below twelve months ago. Butter is much higher, eggs somewhat lower. Wool has advanced 14 per cent. Cotton, too, commands fully 1½ cents a pound more than early last September.

All this is more encouraging to growers who have been fortunate enough to raise supplies than to the lamentable number of farmers forced to accept government aid and to consumers.

Retail reports are, on the whole, cheerful. Most sections are repairing for brisk fall demands.

The motor industry is nearing the end of an exceptionally good year. And all leading makers are preparing for extensive schedules for new models, which will shortly begin to appear during next month.

Steel consumption and price advances have attracted keen attention. Motor and railway orders are called better than construction contracts. Predictions of a building boom have not yet materialized.

Opinions differ concerning the industrial outlook, but optimism predominates.

President Roosevelt's declaration that the government's credit is "on a sounder basis than ever before in its history" is unive[illegible] terized in the finan[illegible] most superficial. It i[illegible] government, through control of the Fed[illegible] banks and its other [illegible] gether with enormous [illegible] ments of gold to thi[illegible] able to borrow at [illegible] low interest rates.

But the administration has practically no competition as a wholesale borrower. Industry and business have been and still are afraid to accept the responsibility of asking more capital from investors. Any private concern which was paying out, as is the government, more than two dollars for every one dollar taken in, year after year, would hardly claim that its financial position was delightfully strong. But Washington has queer ideas about finance.

Shipbuilding Gains

On August 1 American shipyards were building or under contract to build for private shipowners, exclusive of vessels previously launched, 222 vessels aggregating 212,525 gross tons, against 167 vessels aggregating 153,550 gross tons on July 1, Department of Commerce reported.

Western Electric

Western Electric Company declared a dividend of 75 cents on the common, payable September 30 to stock of record September 21. On June 30 a dividend of 50 cents on the common was paid.

Bonds Listed

As of Sept. 1, 1936, there were 1400 bond issues aggregating $44,279,021,922 par value listed on the New York Stock Exchange, with a total market value of $42,235,760,556 and an average price of $95.39.

Daily Tax Fact

By B. C. FORBES

Did Thomas Jefferson foresee the possibility of a New Deal administration, an administration prodigal in expenditures, an administration that would create a bureaucratic army "to make partisans," an administration that would cunningly portray its extravagances as "a public blessing"?

Read this prophetic letter Jefferson wrote in 1799:

"I am for a government rigorously frugal and simple, applying all the possible savings of the public revenue to the discharge of the national debt; and not for a multiplication of officers and salaries merely to make partisans, and for increasing, by every device, the public debt, on the principle of its being a public blessing."

It isn't hard to understand why President Roosevelt and other squandermaniacs so rigidly refrained from all mention of Thomas Jefferson's economic philosophy in their (supposedly) Jeffersonian orations this year.

THE COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS
DEPARTMENT OF BANKING AND INSURANCE DIVISION OF INSURANCE

To Whom It May Concern:—

NOTICE is hereby given, pursuant to Section 113B of chapter 175 of the General Laws, as appearing in the Tercentenary Edition, as amended by section [illegible], that a public hearing will be held before the Commissioner of Insurance under said section 113B, as amended, on Saturday, the [illegible] day of September, 1936, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, in the Auditorium, [illegible], 100 Nashua Street, Boston, on the schedule of premium charges and classifications of risks proposed to be fixed and established by the said Commissioner under said section 113B, as amended, for use in connection with the issue or execution of motor vehicle liability policies and bonds, as defined in section 34A of chapter 90 of the General Laws, as appearing in the Tercentenary Edition, as amended, for or during the year 1937.

NOTICE is further given, as required by said section 113B, as amended, that the classifications of risks and schedule of premium charges proposed to be fixed and established as aforesaid are as follows:—

PART I

MOTOR VEHICLE LIABILITY POLICIES

SECTION A

GENERAL DEFINITIONS AND CLASSIFICATIONS

[illegible]

SECTION B

RATING TERRITORIES

[illegible]

[illegible]ble to the highest rated territory in or through which they operate, as set forth in the aforesaid schedule under the classification Buses (Not Otherwise Classified), provided the distance between the termini of the route is less than fifty miles. If said distance exceeds fifty miles, the premium charges applicable to the highest rated territory in or through which they operate, as set forth under the aforesaid classification Buses (Not Otherwise Classified), shall be increased in accordance with the following schedule. If the miles traveled between the termini is 51 to 100 miles, the said increase shall be 5%; if it is 101 to 150 miles, 10%; if it is 151 to 200 miles, 15%; if it exceeds 200 miles, 20%.

School Buses
Buses (Restricted Use)
Registered for Carrying Passengers for Hire
(Premium Charges per Car)

[illegible]

Any motor vehicle which is used under written or oral contract with a city or town for the transportation of school children and having permanent seating accommodations for and carrying more than seven persons, while so used must be insured under a motor vehicle liability policy which provides indemnity for bodily injury (statutory compulsory coverage) in the case of any one accident resulting in injury to or death of more than one person up to the amount of [illegible].

Public Automobiles Electrically Operated

Public Automobiles electrically operated shall be written at a reduction of 25% from the Statutory premium charges for Public Automobiles specified above.

GARAGE, DEALERS' AND MANUFACTURERS' AUTOMOBILES
(Rates per $100 payroll)

[illegible]

The aforesaid payroll basis rates are to be used for a "Garage Payroll" policy, that is one that covers the operation of motor vehicles or trailers by Manufacturers or Dealers in Automobiles, Motorcycles, Trailers, Automobile Sales Agencies and Public Garages under Manufacturers', Dealers', or Repairers' Registrations or other registrations of the assured named in the policy, but not the carrying of passengers for hire or the renting of automobiles to others. The premium for a Garage Payroll policy shall be based upon the payroll of all officers and employees of the Assured, as hereinafter provided. The "Payroll" shall include the actual remuneration, including salaries, wages, commissions, bonuses and any other compensation paid to all employees wherever located. The entire payroll of all departments shall be included whether or not the salesroom, repair shop, paint shop or other departments are at the same or different locations.

All executive officers, proprietors and co-partners active in the business, as well as all general managers and salesmen, whether compensation on a salary or commission basis, shall be included at a fixed amount of $2,000 each per annum.

GUEST OCCUPANT INSURANCE

The premium charge for Garage, Dealers' and Manufacturers' automobiles in each Garage, Dealers' and Manufacturers' Automobile Territory shall be:—

[illegible]

SERVICE AND TOWING CARS

The Statutory and Guest Occupant premium charges for automobiles of the Private Passenger or Commercial type used as service or towing cars shall be those for COMMERCIAL AUTOMOBILES, Class 2, Light, but not less than the Private Passenger "Y" car premium charge.

MISCELLANEOUS

Private Livery
School Buses and Buses—Restricted Use
Garage, Dealers' and Manufacturers' Automobiles

5. (b) Private passenger cars used by salesmen or solicitors, or those with similar duties, requiring the operation of the car in more than one rating territory in Massachusetts, shall be assigned to the territory determined by the place of principal garaging, or if there is no specific city or town of principal garaging, then, by the residential address of the operator, or, if the residential address of the operator cannot be determined, then, by the Massachusetts business address of the operator.

6. If an insured procures a new motor vehicle liability policy because of the cessation of authority of a company to issue such policies the premium charge for such new policy shall be computed pro rata on the premium applicable to the policy replaced.

7. If a policy has been cancelled by an insurance company and such motor is later reinstated by the Board of Appeal or by the superior court, the premium charges for the unexpired term of the policy shall be calculated pro rata on the premium applicable to the policy when originally issued.

8. If, during the policy term, the insured sells or transfers the motor vehicle covered thereunder and replaces it on the same date by another motor vehicle, the insurance company may by endorsement reinstate the policy in the name of the same insured for the unexpired portion of its term to cover the replacement motor vehicle. In such case the return premium for the motor vehicle sold or transferred shall be calculated pro rata on the premium written therefor in the policy, and the additional premium for the replacement motor vehicle shall be calculated pro rata on the premium which would have applied to such motor vehicle as of the effective date of the policy.

PART II

MOTOR VEHICLE LIABILITY BONDS

It is proposed that the definitions and classifications for Statutory and Guest Occupant coverage hereinbefore set forth in PART I for motor vehicle liability policies, shall be established for motor vehicle liability bonds.

It is proposed that the schedule of premium charges for Statutory and Guest Occupant coverage for motor vehicle liability bonds shall be FIFTY PER CENT (50%) of the premium charges proposed, as set forth in PART I, for motor vehicle liability policies.

All persons and insurance companies desiring to be heard on the proposed classifications of risks and schedule of premium charges for Statutory and Guest Occupant coverage as hereinbefore set forth, should appear as aforesaid, and they may then and there show cause, if any they have, why the said classifications and schedule of premium charges for Statutory and Guest Occupant coverage should not be fixed and established for motor vehicle liability policies and bonds to be issued or executed in connection with the registration of motor vehicles under said chapter 90, as amended, for or during the year 1937.

Written communications will be given consideration if received at the office of the Commissioner of Insurance, 100 Nashua Street, Boston, before the hearing.

DATED at Boston this eighth day of September, 1936.

FRANCIS J. DE CELLES,
Commissioner of Insurance.

"Royalist Roosevelt"

Ex-Senator Reed Compares President's Preachments and Practices

MR. ROOSEVELT'S recent attack on the "economic royalists" was calculated to make your flesh creep.

But the effect of that forthright denunciation has been considerably marred by former Senator James Reed of Missouri, who in a speech in Maine the other day pointed out that Mr. Roosevelt was by way of being an economic royalist himself.

Mr. Reed brought to light the fact that the Roosevelt family own or control 5,792 shares in General Electric (the President himself being a trustee for 1,792 shares), and if General Electric is not one of those gigantic corporations which the President views with much alarm, what is?

Mr. Roosevelt, according to the ex-Senator, also was a director in a vast holding company known as "Consolidated Automatic Merchandising Company," and organized by some of the greatest corporations in America to create a monopoly in automatic sales devices.

Still further, says Mr. Reed, Mr. Roosevelt was president of "United European Investors Corporation," a company which proposed to exchange its stock for German marks at par and invest the proceeds in Germany.

"My information," remarked Mr. Reed, "is that the company blew up."

MR. REED does not criticize Mr. Roosevelt for controlling stock in large and successful corporations, or seeking to get in on so-called "monopoly" profits, or even, perhaps, for thinking that there was money in German marks.

But, like most persons, he wonders why Mr. Roosevelt is so bitter against the other economic royalists when he himself has held the same role.

It is rather puzzling to plain people. Perhaps Mr. Roosevelt meant his remarks to be taken in a Pickwickian sense.

Put Emphasis on Safety

AN appropriate contribution to the campaign against reckless and excessively fast driving has been made by the board of directors of the Automobile Manufacturers' Association.

A resolution adopted by the board urges members of the association to put the soft pedal on their claims of high speed in their vehicles. Emphasis upon safety will feature automobile advertising.

The reserve speed built into an automobile is in itself an essential of safety, if it is not abused by the driver. Safe performance of a motor at a normal operating speed is only provided by the margin of reserve.

But the automobile makers are on the right track when they seek to inspire in the prospective buyer the question, "How quickly will it stop?" rather than "How fast will it go?"

You read of the small, single-engined plane that carried this adventurous woman across 1800 miles of Atlantic, over the ocean graves of other adventurous women, and you wonder.

Perhaps, wondering, you ask yourself what this flirting with death accomplishes, whether it is worth the risk involved. Then, thinking of the little plane with the woman pilot that, without radio, without elaborate equipment, spanned in a few hours the expanse of water it took months to cross but a century ago, you wonder no more.

What could many-motored planes with many pilots do?

You ask yourself that question, and all America joins you. Truly, we stand on the threshold of a new era with our accepted modes of transportation growing daily more obsolete and the whole world, even mothers, taking to wings.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

O. O. McIntyre

New York, Sept. 9—Colonel Theodore Roosevelt is a luncheon regular. He likes to gather a small group around in the show spots at lunch hour and spin yarns. He is seldom seen after dark or at the theaters but is in full flower at mid-day. The life of the party.

While the Colonel was having coffee at a recent lunch, John Mulholland, the magician, left his seat to go to the Colonel's side. This was their first meeting.

Said Mulholland:

"Colonel, I want to thank you for getting me out of a bad jam in India. A favor you know nothing about."

It seems Mulholland got stranded at Chandpur in 1926. He was broke flatter than one of his trick 50-cent pieces. At the bank he asked for $200. His letter of credit was no good for he could not identify himself. Inquired the cashier: "Do you know any Americans in Chandpur?"

The magician shook his head. The cashier added:

"An American went through here 10 days ago. His name is Theodore Roosevelt. Do you know him?"

Exclaimed Mulholland:

"Know Teddy? I should say I do!"

He meant, of course, everybody in America did. But it got the needed cash.

John Mulholland, by the way, is the idol of the prestidigitateurs. A swanky, sartorially precise fellow, his close friendships include Gene Tunney, Harold Ross, Bert Terhune and such and he hobnobs in off-hand ease at the Long Island Hamptons.

As a magician, he mutters no abracadabra over his evanishments. His is the attitude of the challenger. His hand is quicker than your eye. Catch him if you can. And nobody has.

He is one of those fellows you watch all day, and never grow tired.

Mulholland, too, is one of the lightning personalities of his art. There are many magicians but only a handful in the whole parade who offered the suavity, charm and glamour of Houdini, Thurston and Kellar. Mulholland has a literary flair and his articles on his professional antics are in ready demand in almost any of the magazine shops.

Most of his exhibits are private and for a bon ton clientele. Indeed he seems to enjoy most a circle of friends at a cafe table and puts on a private show for their amazement.

Nate Leipzig, to my notion, was always a peer of prestidigitation during the days of now vanquished vaudeville. He hasn't perhaps the debonnaire dazzle of a Mulholland or Thurston but for actual muscle control he is top flight.

No performer is such an earnest experimenter and so constantly in action. When he walks the streets he usually has a coin in his hand with which he is flexing muscles. He keeps cards on his night table to riffle during waking stretches.

My own delving into Black Art covered a period of many years. No hobby is quite so enchanting or so boring to suffering spouses. I was always popping in all merry and bright with a new trick for my wife to watch.

I spent much time in a dingy magic shop on Sixth avenue, whose proprietor was a sort of Fifth avenue Apollo with a Barrymore profile. Many touring magicians hung out there and he taught me a variety of manipulations. Then, somehow, our paths parted.

Several years later in London I saw a flamboyant billboard in Oxford Circus showing a magician evanishing a man-eating lion. He was billed as The Great Lafayette. When I went to see The Great Lafayette it was—tableau—my friend of the Sixth avenue magic shop.

More and more is the New York speech difficult to understand. Due no doubt to failure to hike voices above the din, they simply mumble. I was impressed today by a fellow from Indiana who, after a week here, was going to an ear specialist. He could not understand people. Yet his hearing was perfect. Gelett Burgess once divided the inarticulates into Mumbleboys, Drawlsters, Whinoids and Whisperettes.

I have sympathy for the mumbler. I was one myself and not even grandma's thimble cracks jousted me out of it. I also lost a newspaper job because the m. e. could not catch my mumbo-jumbo at editorial conferences.

Mumbling may not be any special indication of inferiority as so many claim. A mumbler may simply have nothing to say. Or have you noticed?

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

Elsie Robinson

I heard an analysis of fear the other day which out-smarts a dozen psychiatric treatises.

The "Red Head" was saying she'd "love to fly but didn't dare!" Whereupon the "Gray Head" began to discuss height fright — that peculiar terror which grips even the bravest at great elevations. Tall buildings, trestles, scenic railways—"wasn't it queer how some people got that funny feeling while others didn't?"

Lowell Ralph grinned. Lowell's one of those air-minded moderns who were born shouting "Contact!" and have been "taking off" ever since. A five thousand foot cloud's his favorite parking place. What did we mean by "that funny feeling"?

"ALL UPSTAIRS"

"Pooh!" snorted Red Head. "You wouldn't know it, of course. You've been flying so long you can't feel fear."

"It isn't," Lowell answered, still grinning, "a question of feeling fear but of THINKING it. Want a proof? Take an 18-inch plank and suspend it a foot above the ground. Anyone, no matter how timid, would walk that, wouldn't they?

"Wouldn't dream of being frightened. But put that plank out of a sixth story window and not one in a hundred would step on it. Same plank—just as wide and safe—but we're been trained to THINK danger under certain conditions so we're in a panic. I tell you, kid—it's all upstairs."

"It's all upstairs." There's medicine for what ails all of us if we dared to take it.

Our lives are riddled with fear. Fear underlies the smallest acts . . . colors the noblest plans. How much of it is natural, wholesome much of it is natural, wholesome cautious? How much of it is honestly, spontaneously felt? Not a tenth! It's all upstairs."

It comes because we have been trained to THINK FEAR under certain circumstances . . . to associate fear with certain conditions. We do not remember when that training took place, probably have never stopped to analyze our own feeling, or doubt its sincerity. But the brand is upon us and unquestioningly we obey.

RULED BY FEAR

This isn't true of fear alone. It is to some degree true of all our emotions. We seldom feel what we feel . . . we feel, instead, what we think we should feel, what we have been taught to feel, what we have seen others feel.

If we followed our natural bent, we'd meet with complete indifference an amazing number of occasions which now excite us. Man isn't, naturally, a very "feeling" animal. Normally he has long periods of unconcern when he is as unresponsive as any turnip or cow. And what a relief!

But our artificial code will not permit us the luxury of being natural. We have been led to believe that intelligence is accompanied by emotion. Lots of emotion. Smart people are supposed to be "high strung" . . . always full of feeling . . . always sad or glad, ecstatic or mad, frightened or burning with courage. So we keep up the tradition.

How often do you say that to yourself? There are people who do say that to themselves. There are people who realize that many of our emotions—particularly our unhappy fear and grief and anger emotions—"are all upstairs," and have been "put upstairs" by our silly social thinking.

It is a fine experience to meet a person who is honest and brave enough to defy such silliness—who has the courage to act as he feels. They are restful, those people. They give life a stability and dignity.

They usually make me feel like thirty cents!

'Dear Govt.' -:- By Winston Norman

Mr. Hopkins,
BOON-DOGLE DEPT.,
U. S. Govt.

Dear Mr. Hopkins:

I have took my pensil in hand to tell you about the saddest Releif Case you ever seen. It is my Cousin Ned, he just lost his job on the WPA.

Cousin Ned use to lay bricks till Mr. Roosevelt come in, but then the Govt. put him on Releif, and being as he was a fine Brick-Layer, they give him a shovel job.

Well Mr. Hopkins, Ned got along real happy on WPA. They only made him boon-dogle 3 days per week, and the other 4 days he done his loafing at home. He soon seen that Boon-dogling was better than the old Capatalist System. "I am goin to stick with Mr Hopkins from now on," says Cousin Ned, "because he don't kill me off with a 5-day week like them Capatalists use to do."

But yesterday I run into my Cousin on the street, and he was lookin purty glum. "I am feeling awful," he says, "I lost my WPA job and I'm workin in Privat Industry again."

So then he told me how it happened. He says that Privat Industry needs bricklayers like him. Privat Industry says that if the Unemployed will lay bricks for them, they can earn more wages than they get for Boon-doggling on WPA.

Cousin Ned says that Farmers is another kind of Capitalist that's doin' the same thing. They are begging WPA folks to work for them, becauze their crops is rottin' on the ground for lack of labor.

When Ned told me them things I got woried, Mr. Hopkins. "Good Heavens," I says, "do you mean that Mr. Hopkins throwed you off of WPA just becoze them Privat Capatalists wanted to hire you for more wages?"

"Oh, no," says Ned, "Mr. Hopkins wouldent ever think of a thing like that. It was my Wife that done it. She seen I could support her better with a privat brick-laying job, so she had me throwed off of WPA."

Mr. Hopkins, I seen that you wouldent of lost my Cousin if you had paid him better for bein Unemployed. You got to raise WPA wages even higher than they are now, or them Privat Capatalists will ruin you. They will steal all the workers back into privat jobs, and there won't be nobody left on Govt. Relief except you, me and Mr. Roosevelt.

Yours truly,
W. NORMAN.

Human Side of the News

By Edwin C. Hill

THE GLOBE TROTTER OF HEARST METROTONE NEWS

Edwin C. Hill

A few statements from the press:

This from Earl Beatty, 31-year-old son of the late Admiral Beatty and an American mother, a member of Parliament in his own right:

"During my visit I could not fail to notice the close resemblance of American politics today to those of England in 1931. They are all about economy and balancing the budget. And that was the word in England in those years, when the Laborites were in power and were spending so much money.

"We had a startling deficit then and our prosperity dated from the return of the Conservatives to power and their curtailment of spending."

From what I hear, no one can travel about the country without gaining the same impression. Some of the best informed political writers tell me that the real big task before Franklin D. Roosevelt is the defense of his spending as well as an explanation of what he can do about economizing.

This is true not only in the industrial states, which bear the brunt of taxation, but it even reaches into the agricultural South and Northwest, sections which have benefited most in proportion to their tax contributions. The question heard on all sides is:

"Who's going to pay those $35,000,000,000?"

And everyone suspects the correct answer, which is: "Everyone!"

This from Harold O. Whitnall, professor of geology at Colgate University:

"John Fiske and many other historians have stated that this insignificant skirmish determined the nationality of the United States. The unwarranted attack upon the peaceful Oneidas ran along the grapevine communication and created a prejudice against the French, so that when the English came and the New York State savages chose sides their sympathies were with the English.

"Under their great friend, Sir William Johnston, they avenged the uncalled-for attack by Champlain nearly 150 years before."

The "ifs" of history always afford interesting speculation. Champlain permitted himself to be persuaded by the Hurons of Canada to help them against the Oneidas, and the New York Indians never forgot. A fog over the heights of Brooklyn saved Washington's army from capture by Howe.

"If" Grouchy hadn't lost his way at Waterloo; "if" von Kluck had not turned back from the Marne; "if" Abraham Lincoln had gotten that appointment to the Oregon Land Office—if all the "ifs" had been eliminated, this would be quite a different world, but, perhaps, none the better.

This from Arthur S. Vernay, explorer and one of the few outsiders permitted to visit Lassa, capital of Tibet, the forbidden Land of Snows:

"Tibet is probably the only place in the world where women don't try to beautify themselves. Instead, they smear black grease over their faces so that it is difficult to know what they really look like. They say quite frankly that they are so beautiful that they have to protect themselves from the advances of men. Personally, I saw only one Tibetan woman, who, it seemed to me, needed to entertain any fears of this kind.

"They are big, strong women, and they seem very happy in their belief that they are extraordinarily beautiful."'

If and when Mr. Vernay's words get back to Tibet, they will bring pitying smiles from the nomadic herders of the Himalayas. When it comes to standards of beauty, one race's meat is poison to another.

The belle of Park Avenue is no more a beauty in the African jungle than is the ring-lipped lady from Uganda in the eyes of the curious at the circus in Madison Square Garden.

That's That -:- By Bruce Gustin

Speaking at Julesburg, Colo., on his drouth inspection tour, President Roosevelt said: "With co-operation between Federal, State and local governments, we promise that we will work out something which will mean better prosperity for all the people, not alone those in the drouth areas." When is that going to be done? His administration has had more than three years to work out this "something." How many more years of experimentation does the President think he will need?

The New Dealers have a peculiar idea about "co-operation." Under their philosophy, co-operation between the Federal government and the States means State submission to Federal dictation. Their soil conservation scheme is a sample of that. Certain cash "benefits" are promised farmers in those States which adopt a soil conservation program that is APPROVED BY THE SECRETARY OF AGRICULTURE. Whether a particular farmer needs a handout from the Federal government has nothing whatever to do with the program. If he and his state will submit to Federal dictation, he can get money.

One of the problems with which the Administration is wrestling, the President said, is that of "putting the land to its PROPER use. Twenty-five years ago, when we had all the land we wanted, that problem didn't intrude. But the days of the frontier are gone. We must learn to put our land to better use than we have been putting it for the last generation." If the government's "long range" farm planning doesn't work out any better than its plans for balancing the budget, the farmers had better continue to do their own planning.

The first thing American farmers should have is an opportunity to sell what they can produce in the American market. All the political planning in the world cannot make them prosperous while their production is restricted to enable foreign farmers to sell more of their products in the United States. It will take a lot of very clever planning to overcome the curse of the New Deal reciprocal trade agreement policy.

Recently, eight carloads of Canadian cheese were shipped to Plymouth, Wis., in the heart of the nation's greatest cheese-producing state. That is a result of the Canadian reciprocal trade agreement. During the first six months of this year, shipments of Canadian cheese into the United States increased 733 per cent over the same period of 1935. Every pound of Canadian cheese sold in this country cuts American producers out of a chance to sell a pound of American cheese.

All this talk from Washington about the New Dealers proposing a tax-reform bill if they are continued in office is just vote bait. Only suckers will swallow it. The Administration has had four sessions of Congress to do any tax reforming that it intended to do. The President has been in a position all this time to revamp the tax system any way he pleased. Every change that has been made has been another wallop at the taxpayer. THE KIND OF TAX REFORM URGENTLY NEEDED IS TAX REDUCTION. But there will never be any tax reduction while the New Dealers are handling the federal purse.

Japan's right to retain 15,598 tons of submarines which, under provisions of the London naval treaty of 1930, were due to be scrapped at the end of the year, is being questioned in England. It is argued that Japan has a right to increase her destroyer tonnage, but is not entitled to increase the submarine class. Japan will interpret the treaty to suit Japan. If other nations do not like that, they can protest, but their protests will do them no good.

What worries the United States and England is the fact that Japan's submarine strength will be one-third greater than either of them. They can meet this situation by building more submarines. Either of them is more able than Japan to engage in a naval building race.

More important to the defense of the United States than ships on or under the water are ships in the air. Twelve new "flying fortresses" nearing completion on the Pacific coast are the kind of ships we need. These bombers, capable of flying more than 250 miles an hour, and with a non-stop cruising radius of over 3000 miles, can carry more bombs than any plane the army ever has had. Armed with machine guns and laden with bombs, they are aerial battleships. One of them is worth more for defensive purposes—and defense is the only thing in which this country should be interested—than a half dozen battleships on the ocean.

Illinois, joining New York in asking the United States Supreme Court to reconsider its decision holding the New York minimum wage scale unconstitutional, reminds the court of its ruling in the NRA case that matters of local employment are the peculiar concern of the States. The Illinois petition argues that if the States are to deal effectively with local matters they must have power to act.

There is much to be said in favor of minimum wage laws. Some cities have established minimum wage scales for labor. If it is in the public interest to require contractors on public works to pay at least a specified minimum wage, it does seem that some measure of protection against exploitation should be extended at least to women and children who have to work in stores, factories, etc.
